Urge School-Bound Vets To Apply Now

The Veterans Administration has issued a warning to Korean veterans planning to enter college this fall to apply now for school applications. By applying now, college-bound veterans may avoid delay that may develop during the fall enrollment peak.

Guy F. Palmer, Regional Manager, said that many thousands of Michigan Korean veterans are expected to enroll in colleges next month. The VA will have to handle this increase in addition to the normal load of veterans already in school, job and farm training programs.
