

Original Art Now Rented Here

An art rental service was instituted last week by the Little Gallery, first time that originals could be rented in the Birmingham area.

The varied selection includes some 50 paintings, watercolors, drawings and signed lithographs. The pictures are ready to hang, in frames, and are insured by the Gallery.

"Art appreciation is a matter of absorption and prolonged contact," according to the white-on-black brochure issued by the gallery on West Maple this week. Paintings at the gallery currently include a German group by Hans Jaenisch, Kubieck, and Moll.

Works for Radio

Miles Welter, a student at Ohio State university, has been named to handle special events and publicity over WOJO, the university's student-operated radio station that is wired on a limited basis to dormitories on the campus.

MRS. JOHN RICHARD ORTMAN

Italian Silk Worn For Saturday Rites

Sheila Patricia Dunn chose for her marriage to John Richard Ortman, a gown of Italian silk taffeta. The fitted basque was accented with long pointed sleeves and a delicate neckline delicately appliqued with alencon lace and tiny pearls. Graceful folds of the full skirt fell into a chapel sweep. Her tiered illusion-veil was secured by a tiny Juliet cap of matching lace. She carried a cascade of white orchids and stephanotis.

The couple exchanged vows and rings at 11 a.m., Saturday, in Gesu church, Detroit, with the Rev. Clement Singer officiating. A reception and breakfast at the Detroit Golf club followed the rites for 250 guests.

Sheila's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Dunn of Parkside, Detroit. John is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Ortman of Wadlington road.

COMING from Los Angeles, Calif., to act as matron of honor was Mrs. Akrell Burnap. Bridesmaids were Sally Ann Smith and Kathleen Mary Tindall both of Detroit, and Mrs. James F. Ortman of Royal Oak.

All attendants wore ballerina gowns of hyacinth blue spun silk. In their hair was a velvet band of American Beauty with a wisp of veiling. They carried cascades of American Beauty carnations.

James F. Ortman was his brother's best man. Ushers were Mr. William A. Ortman, who is stationed in Atlanta, Ga., Walter Richard Kadell of Kent, Ohio, Henry J. Maurec and Thomas J. Dunn, brother of the bride, both of Detroit, Frederick Marshall Darden of Birmingham, and John F. Danke of Battle Creek.

SHEILA'S MOTHER wore a waltz-length, cassini gown of shaded blue-grey peau de sole with an embroidered lace stand-up collar and a bib front. She had a matching hat trimmed with pink rosebuds and carried cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Ortman chose a periwinkle blue nylon chiffon gown.

For her flying trip to Palm Beach, Fla., the new Mrs. Ortman wore a light grey tweed suit and navy and white accessories. When they return, they will make their home at 3318 Coolidge, Royal Oak.
