Plan for August Garden Color

By ALICE WESSELS BURLINGAME
Special Writer for The Birmingham Eccentric

"At this time of year many of you are disappointed in the plant accents. You wish you could find a selection of shrubs which would give you an impact of color which you enjoyed in May and June."

The butterfly bush or lantana should be planted for dividends this time of year. In this area it may die down to the ground each winter and be slow in starting in the spring but this is the healthy pattern of the shrub.

There is a new butterfly bush which will give you white flowers from August until October and won't be over three feet high.

The spikes of flowers, like the florets of a lilac, will be short stemmed. These white flowers make it a fine accent to place in front of higher growing shrubs where the white accent will show up well at dusk, especially if you are using night lighting in your yard.

The hollyhock-like flowers of the mallow will give you late summer color accents. They like a moist soil in full sun.

Those who winter in Florida and grow accustomed to the many varieties of hibiscus will be glad to add some of the varieties of it to their gardens here.

THE HYDRANGEA varieties provide us with a late summer flowering shrub, ignored by most people until they discover, in August, they wish they had it.

One of the finest examples we have in this area of hydrangea is in front of the circular drive of the A. Wades, 320 Cranbrook street near...

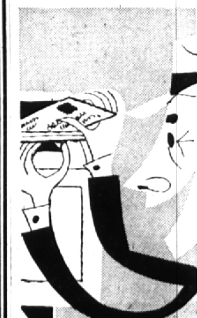

It is located in full sun opposite the front door and the planting provides a hedge 10 feet long. The variety, in this instance, is Pee Gee, the kind which has panicles like a large bunch of grapes which shades into cream and rose hues.

In September you will all wish you had a sweet autumn climatic vine for a semi-shaded spot. It provides a greenery like smilax with floral decorations. Its flowers are white against a dark green leaf.

WHILE DRIVING around town the other day I found a good plan for a driveway approach where a steep embankment is the problem. On each side of the driveway flat spreading Junipers had been planted five feet apart, forming a large triangle pattern.

These low spreading junipers have a potential height of three feet and as they mature and the...

of the embankment. You can see this planting at 1480 Suffield. At 532 Lakeside you will enjoy seeing a well-designed contemporary home which sits on a hillside. You can appreciate the problem of the owner "holding" the bank before the lawn and shrubs were established.

These Reshidents located a man who made adobe brick with which they built a wall three and a half feet high to hold the soil about 20 feet from the structure and to break up the angle of the steep hill.

Here and there in the wall they have placed wall plants in pockets of humus and along the top they have an abundance of myrtle. There are spreading junipers on the top of the ledge, placed vertically.

More and more localities are eroding garden lighting for evening hospitality. Whether you are on the terrace, within an enclosed porch or looking out through a picture window, lighted flower beds and shrubs really glamorize your landscape planning.

It is fun when you develop effects using a good safe outdoor cord with a sealed beam light placed behind shrubs, focused up to the height of a tree or having the rays of light come up behind a grouping of stones.

MAYBE WE forget that we all have a feeling of disconcertment in August. Top dressing fertilizer and seed is a combination you can't beat for correcting faulty lawns.

How much can you save?

"Not as much as I'd like to" is the standard answer. But wait: Count the little, unnecessary expenditures that you've simply got into the habit of making—and figure their dollar total for a year. You're likely to find it's considerable.

How many of those expenditures—how much of that total—could you forego without any real pain? That's how much more you can save, with a very little effort—if you will.
