We Heard It Said By:

PROF. LARAIN, Grandville Academy, of the graduate students, "I feel very fortunate in studying here at the academy. Students receive excellent instruction, yet have a genuine sense of freedom. There is no added advantage of working with the faculty from all over the world who share previously gained knowledge and ideas to help others in their art work."

POINTING TO SOME of the crib spreads already completed for William Beaumont hospital's nursery, Anna May Smith (left) and Lydia Goss take time out from their stitching to look over their classmates' work. The Baldwin school sixth-grade girls are presenting the spreads to the hospital this month. Girls decorated white sheeting with embroidery and applique work.

Helping to outfit the new nursery at William Beaumont hospital has occupied feminine sixth-graders at Baldwin school for the past month.

The little house has tenants now
And is no longer lone,
There so deserted and apart,
I look a happy home.

And now the light shines forth again,
And friendly souls draw nigh,
The curtained windows glowing bright,
To cheer the passer-by.

A house is such a lonely thing
When no one dwells inside,
But it can be a refuge firm,
Where friendly folks abide.
