PUTTING finishing touches on props they made, Sally Showering (left), and Patsy Lenahan prepare for the Christmas program at Quarton school. The fifth and sixth grade students have invited parents for Dec. 15 at 8 p.m.

Season Means Busy Days At Quarton School

They've decked the halls and classrooms, too, at Quarton elementary school in Birmingham. Industrious pupils are also preparing a Christmas program and making gifts for their parents.

Under the direction of art in- ginning with the partridge in a tree, students have made the students have created an air of Christmas cheer and excitement. The three-dimensional paper-figures circle the room. Fifth-grade boys have made a Santa workshop which greets visitors at the main entrance to the school. Food high-fives of Santa and his helpers were placed in a row by art club members. Bob Lartigue, Jassif Green, Ed Brown and John Fleming all students of Robert McGee.

MRS. RUTH MURRAY'S fourth-graders have selected large and small figures of Mary, Joseph, and the Babe, hung on a large window at a stage window, the pictures give a stage-give effect. The 12 days of Christmas decorate the walls of Mrs. Lucille Hutchings' fifth-grade room for grade program.

Casts Area Children Pupils from the Birmingham area participating in the production were Sandra MacPherson, Marsha Hoffman, Carol Olmsted, Donna Roth, Robert Compton, Paul Riccardi and Edward and Stephen Hill.
