

Madrigal Singers to Wear Colorful Period Costumes

A colorful Christmas program is planned for the December meeting of Birmingham branch, American Association of University Women, at 12:45 luncheon meeting at the Community House Wednesday, Dec. 14.

Mrs. W. G. Patton, gives Christmas skit "All Ways Christmas" will open the program and introduce the Birmingham Madrigal Singers, with a song and dialogue setting of the Nativity. This is a new arrangement of a two-parted choral music in plainsong and contemporary style, arranged and conducted by Mary Jane Walker.

Mr. J. E. Berno, AAUW member, will appear as narrator for the Singers, who wear colorful costumes and sing the Elizabethan period.

Hundreds of new books appear on bookstore counters every year for Christmas giving. Of all these, perhaps three or four are remembered and read ten years later. Mr. R. W. Wainwright, who has had wide experience as speaker for Wyandotte and Grosse Pointe libraries, and conducted a book column in the Wyandotte paper, will bring with her to the meeting a selection of Christmas books and tell fellow members which of this year's publishers' selections she thinks will be long remembered.

INTERESTING table decorations have been planned and made for the luncheon by Trigon, a unit for women's groups of the organization, and Mrs. Burling Lamb, these, perhaps three or four are remembered and read ten years later.

News copy submitted early is necessarily given preference, so the "early bird" usually gets the space.

Professor of Design Shows Works of Art

The Birmingham Society of Women Painters will present Emil Weddige in a one-man show of his latest works of art in the second floor reception room of the Baldwin Library.

The tea on Saturday, Dec. 10, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m., will be headed by Mrs. Clarence Patton. Table arrangements will be done by Mrs. John Hopson with Mrs. Warren Brown as in charge of refreshments.

Weddige is among the most important of today's graphic artists. Born in Canada, he had his art training at Michigan State Normal college, the University of Michigan, where he is associate professor of design at the Art Students League and with the late Emil Ganso. In recent years he worked extensively in Europe.

In 1935 he first began exhibiting and since that time no year has passed without some institution exhibiting his work as a one-man show or as an invited artist. In recent years his work has been given an average of five one-man exhibitions and had received numerous awards as well as being shown extensively in national exhibitions through the United States and Europe.

After the tea Birmingham painters and their husbands with Mr. and Mrs. Weddige will have dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus E. Osborn. Mrs. Ralph Williams and Mrs. Don Adams will be assistant hostesses for the evening.
