The Railroads — Our No. 1 War Asset
AMERICA is committed to a policy of doing all it can to prevent a war. Simultaneously it is maintaining as far as possible the kind of economy that has in the past given us superiority in time of war.
No one who has lived through two major wars and Korea can dispute the great contribution to them by the railroads.
Despite all modern developments of other means of transportation, the fact remains that the vast bulk of war materials and personnel must be moved on rails.
The stepped-up production of heavy goods required by war is possible only with a network of railroad systems operating at full efficiency.
America has that network. America should give full thought to assuring that full efficiency.
