'Country Girl' Leads Have Wide Background

Three seasoned actors, Nat C. Doughty, Mrs. W. H. (Charlotte) Adams and Jerry McMechan, have been assigned leading roles in the February production of "Country Girl" by St. Dunstan's Guild.

Mrs. Adams, playing the first lead, is a well-known actress and author and director, Ernest Lothar, after she took refuge in the theatre in World War I.

Active in St. Dunstan's for several years, she is remembered for her performances in "The Bachelor" and "The Two Mrs. Carrolls." "Country Girl" is a play by "The Eccentric" and "Detective" story.

In addition to her dramatic hobby, Mrs. Adams is the mother of four active youngsters and a husband bitten by the do-it-yourself bug badly enough to start a homebased plywood business.

SAYS MRS. ADAMS: "The kids will all be married before it is finished."

Doughty, the aging Broadway has been in "Country Girl" began his stage career in character roles in high school plays.

"I had 'muscles' in my voice and voice to be heard with conviction," he explains.

In the University of Pennsylvania he was active with the Mask and Wig and Penn Players groups, again getting the roles of elderly men. After college, in two amateur groups, he had a chance to "act his age."

He took a fling at the professional stage and was cast as a short who stands six feet four but said young audiences were too tough. They sailed paper airplanes all through the show.

For five years he handled directional reigns for the Swarthmore Players and acted some light comedy.

During his three years in St. Dunstan's he has continued to work in both capacities.

McMechan, another distinguished member, began as a director and actor after an eight year membership.

As the Broadway director, he is living up to both experiences.

Junior Red Cross Builds Stock Pile Of Overseas Gifts

Oakland county's Junior Red Cross director, Mrs. J. H. Kohn, 409 Wimbeldon, said this week that 800 gift boxes had been prepared by the group for shipment to children overseas.

Finished boxes, she said, are held in the ARC warehouse in Washington until a sufficient supply is on hand for shipping.

Mrs. Kohn said that 700 college students are now backing the Junior Group supporting food banks in first-aid, water, and home nursing and giving of their free time to hospitals and institutions as members of service groups.

We Heard It Said By: MRS. HOWARD RIEMAN, March Dimes chairman. "We must correct a statement which is going the rounds to the effect that there will be no March of Dimes this year. We are not a part of the United Foundation and cannot be. There is no way of telling how heavy our annual load will be. Therefore, no way of putting our expenses in budget such as UF would have to do. I feel that the March of Dimes has been confused with the Red Cross which did exist in the UF fold this year. Just rest assured, there will be a March of Dimes the last Thursday of January as usual."
