SOUNDS
Being of sound mind (at this time) we would like to consider with you the tremendous significance of some of the intriguing, mysterious, exciting sounds that surround us.
We will divide this little treatise into three parts—one dealing with the sounds themselves—the second part being concerned with their interpretation and significance—the third providing the solution or relief.

Part One—The Sounds
1. Whir-r-r! This could be a ruffled grouse coming up for a look around—but it isn't.
2. Tweet-Tweet! Well, this, certainly sounds like the hinges on the liquor—ah—medicine cabinet—but it isn't.
3. Screeeech! All we can think of is the nostalgic but hair-raising sound of finger nails coasting down the black-board—but it isn't.
4. Sizzle! Might be from testing the griddle with one drop of water—or the result of poking the index finger into a Christmas tree light socket—but it isn't.
5. Crackle Crackle! This must be either a small nervous boy (or Victor Borge) cracking his knuckles—but it isn't.
6. Roar! A waterfall? A lion? The crowd at a football game? No.

Part Two—Their Interpretation
1. It is really caused by lead-footed drivers winding up the rear wheels on an icy pavement.
2. This sound comes from two sources in particular—
a) From hungry birds.
b) From a nature lover trying to lure birds to the feeder.
3. The correct interpretation is almost as bad. It comes largely from trying to remove snow and ice from the walks.
4. The solution we enjoy most is that it is caused by a 2 inch sirloin steak getting overheated.
5. Hard to believe this is caused by a dog, isn't it?
6. You will roar with laughter when you realize that this is caused by our own trucks.

Part Three—Their Relief or Solution
1. Salt—Calcium Chloride—Ice Rem
2. a) Regular & Cranbrook Feed, Suet, cakes, corn, chicken feed, etc.
b) Roger Eddy Bird Call
3. Aluminum Snow Shovelers (also see No. 1)
4. Outdoor grill, indoor grill, charcoal
5. The Dog's Delight—The Crackle Bone
6. McB's free delivery service (within certain boundaries)
