Before moving to Wing Lake Farms, Mrs. Wilson had a small shop near her home in Rosedale, which served as an outlet for her own designs as well as for other contemporary gift pieces. She has done some custom work, which she credits for Representative and Mrs. Oakman of Detroit. When the Oakmans went to Washington they asked Mrs. Wilson to design "coffee break" cups and doughnut plates for Oakman's office there.

When she was a child, Mrs. Wilson was so fond of small cookies, called pautes which were baked by her French grandmother, that her family nicknamed her Paute and the name has stuck.

Wilson, after spending 20 years married to an artist, turned to sculpture last year, his wife said. He has a piece nearly finished and Mrs. Wilson plans to have a party to unveil it soon.
