Cranbrook Summer Camp Applications Being Accepted

CRANBROOK—Applications are now being received for the 12th annual Kingswood Cranbrook Summer Day Camp to be held between June 20 and July 29, co-directors Dorothy E. Inglis and William Schultz Jr., have announced.

The six-week program will include supervised games and instruction in arts and crafts, with each activity planned for specific age groups.

Swimming lessons under the direction of Red Cross certified instructors will be part of the daily schedule.

GIRLS NINE and over receive training in tennis, ceramics, drawing and painting. Nature study, simple handicrafts and directed play are offered boys and girls between ages six and eight.

Courses for boys nine and over include tennis, woodworking, art metal work, foundry, smithing, ceramics and painting. A special afternoon program for junior scientists offers direction in building a crystal radio set, a simple electric motor, and assembling a mineral collection.

Further information may be obtained from Miss Inglis at Midwest 4-1600, ext. 48.
