MRS. JOHN W. MITCHELL

Trip to New England States Followed Home Wedding

A Bloomfield Hills home on Devon-on-the-Lake was the scene of a ceremony Saturday which united in marriage Joan Betterly and John Weaver Mitchell. The 4:30 p.m. rites were read by the Rev. Perry Williams of Christ Church, Cranbrook, at the home of Joan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lew Betterly.

The bride chose a pale blue princess style dress of all silk tulle. Her flowers were white orchids.

HER matron of honor and only attendant was her twin sister, Mrs. James Johnston in a light tan frock of tissue tulle accented with dark brown. She had a cymbidium orchid.

The sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Mitchell, Jr. of Clearfield, Pa., James Mitchell III, was John's best man.

After the home reception, the couple left for a honeymoon trip through the New England States. For traveling the new Mrs. Mitchell donned a tan knitted jacket dress with brown accessories.

Birthdays, anniversaries, guests, births, parties are all new—all the society editor about them.

COMMUTER'S WIFE

Friends of Family Often Offended By Rude Children

By HELEN BRUNSON
Special Writer for The Birmingham Eccentric

How many of us have at one time or another, been embarrassed by our children's attitude toward our own friends? Many a mother has been chagrined nearly to tears when her own almost-grown daughter has rushed into a room where mother was entertaining a friend, and barely recognizing the company, made some rude remark to her mother.

And some of us can recall when a son has failed to rise when a woman friend of mother's has entered the room. We thought that we'd taught them these things. Our embarrassment is due to the fact that their conduct reflects on us and our training of them.

Some young people today will frankly say that they are bored with older folk and can't see why they should help entertain them. We who still have control of our young people, can find a ready answer for that. The truth is that we, ourselves, are sometimes bored with the younger folk, and yet we put up with them, we help entertain them and we foot the bills.

IF WE WANTED to be mercenary about the reason a child should treat his parents' friends well, we might tell him to remember that such friends sometimes have influence, hold positions of authority and are in a position to do favors for young people when the time arises.

Older people can and will push younger ones when a little help is needed. But a family friend who may remember the rebuff for a long time.

needed. But a family friend who may remember the rebuff for a long time. Our approach should be that the family is a unit, and that hospitality offered in the home is given by the whole family. That mother and child are entitled to be proud of how their children appear before guests, and are entitled to respect. Nothing is more charming than their mother's friends, to listen a young person who knows how to politely, to perhaps play a piece on their children appear before guests, and are entitled to be proud of how their children appear before guests, and are entitled to respect. Nothing is more charming than their mother's friends, to listen a young person who knows how to politely, to perhaps play a piece on the piano for them, or generally to one.
