Senior Gardener Grows Mums

By ALICE WESSELS BURLINGAME Special Writer For The Birmingham Eccentric

This morning I visited a happy, contented gardener of 72 years who said, "This gardening project has saved my life..."

Our host was H. H. Crawford of Franklin, known as the local flower grower...

den. There, for the first time I saw a hairy cyclamen. It is one of the alpine plants with leaves like violets...

Crawford has found that if he removes all buds, except one on the end of a branch that he gets a flower twice as large as though he allowed the plant to flower freely...

Here we have a retired father, former pioneer with Durant and later a manufacturer's agent who has found real happiness and contentment with his gardening...

YEWS PLAYED an important place in this garden. Female plants have red berries on them this time of year.

Crepe myrtle had been placed in a southern exposure and was in flower. There was a hedge of teuricium which grows around a foot high...

This gardener likes the rose Blossom Time, because it looks like a sweetest-of-rose and has a pleasant scent. This garden sets a preview of the new introductions in annuals...

This home had many intangible expressions inside and out which enriched the visitor.
