School Opening, Important Factor In Summer Trips

By FRAN MAIER

While many families are still taking late summer vacations, others have come home in preparation for their children's return to schools and colleges. Pictured above the SS Aloa Cavalier are Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Welsh of Timberlake drive, Bloomfield Hills, as they sailed from New Orleans bound for a 16-day Caribbean cruise.

While on the cruise they will visit in Kingston, Jamaica; Port of Spain, Trinidad; Willemstad, Curacao; Guantia, La Guaira, Puerto Cabello and Caracas in Venezuela. Prior to sailing they spent one day sight-seeing in New Orleans.

Among other vacationers are the R. W. Irwins, who are guests at the Northshore, Lake Joseph, Muskoka, Canada, and the Richard B. Begoles, newlyweds, of Covington road, who are honeymooning at The Homestead Hot Springs, Va. Patrick H. Murphy of Colledge road has his family in Atlantic City, N. J., headquartered at Chalfont-Haldon hall.

Readies for College

Reading for Linda Ball's departure for college and entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Hammer, headed up activities for the Jonathan M. Balls at their Shirley drive home last week.

Miss Ball has gone to a Tri-Delta training group convention at Miami university, Oxford, O., preliminary to a houseparty at Virginia Beach Va., and returning to studies at Randolph-Meison college, Lynchburg, Va. She will be a junior at the girls' school.

The Hammers, who moved from Birmingham to Dallas, Texas, in June, spent several days here on route to the summer cottage at Port Austin of the Henry Reams of Birmingham. Their daughter, Ann, will be going to Hollins college, which Susan Kiergi also attends, this fall.

Fraternity Leaders

William L. Bird of Hanna street and Lawrence D. Heitsch of Pontiac have returned from French Lick Springs, Ind., where they attended the Delta Sigma Phi national convention held August 24 to 27.

Larry, who is president of Alpha Pi chapter at Michigan State university, and Bill, who is social chairman, joined more than 500 active alumni members for the four-day convention meetings.

They returned home Sunday morning in time for the cocktail party Sunday evening announcing the engagement of "Trixie" Darden to Larry Heitsch at the "Dardenen's."

Cookies—Standby For 3 PM Snacks

By DOROTHY JEAN ZACK

Down to business, now, and think about what's good for youngsters who've had a hard day at the school books. Lunches to keep those school kiddies happy in after-school hours and yet not kill dinner appetites was subject of a chat with Mrs. Raymond Giffels of Glegary, Birmingham, who as a professional home economist learned many tricks with snacks.

"I think cookies are the standby," says the efficient housewife, who took a box over to the Joseph Paulus home to try out new snacks but tarty baked goods on the three Paulus girls.

MILK, BUTTER, CREAM, eggs and carrot sticks are but a few accompaniments for "bakery products" that Mrs. Giffels suggests. Sturdy cookies can be made up at room for children, or they can make-up their own.

Sandwich spreads can be prepared ahead of time in variety for them, she suggests, if their appearing after school is not a sure thing.

Needleworkers Send Flood Victims Aid Through Red Cross

Birmingham's Chapter, Needlework Guild of America, this week moved to assist the more than 20,000 eastern flood victims.

Asked to contribute by its affiliate, the American Red Cross, the guild forwarded a check for relief use according to Mrs. Parsons Neff, treasurer.

Mrs. Glen Miller, past president, who received the appeal in the absence of Mrs. Robert Woodruff, president, said it is customary for the Guild to make cash donations in such cases.

"Although we are primarily a group which sews for charity," she explained, "we maintain a cash fund for distant relief emergencies."

"It provides money to buy items that are needed and is much faster than for us to ship out sewn items of clothing and bedding."

ENTERTAINERS at the Westlady area block party were these youngsters who actually planned their variety show because they were bored. They had a "command performance" for parents and neighbors Saturday.

Nuptial Gowns Reflecting New, Old Fashion Lines

A Family Tradition Continued by Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Hooper Honeymoon in Virginia

A lace veil worn by three generations of the family was worn again Friday when Anne Greenwood Bradley became the bride of George Eman Valliant. The Rev. Norman Goehring read the rites in St. Michael's church, Milton, Mass., before an altar banked with white roses.

Anne is the daughter of Mrs. Greenwood Bradley of Vineyard Haven, Mass., and John F. Bradley of Milton, Mass. George is the son of Mrs. Robert T. Hart of Bloomfield Hills.

The full-skirted bridal gown was fashioned of ivory peau d'agneau and chanted lace trim with a portrait neckline, she carried a cascade bouquet of white lily-of-the-valley roses.

MRS. WILLIAM F. Becham, Jr., bride-maid, and Milton L. Goff III could not come from Pensacola, Fla., to attend her sister.

Both attendants wore ballerina length gowns of gold silk taffeta with ivory lines, short sleeves, scoop necklines, and low backs. Bride-tresses wore of matching gold taffeta with veils, and they carried cascades of sunset shades of pom-poms.

Henry W. Valliant of Bloomfield Hills was his brother's best man. Ushers were Frederick S. Baker of Huntington Station, N. Y., James E. Barnett Jr. of New York City and Philip B. Bradley, brother of the bride of Milton.

THE BRIDE'S mother chose ivory-brown silk shantung with matching strap hat and white accessories. She had a corsage of bronze hybrid cypripediums.

Mrs. John F. Bradley, stepmother of the bride, who was hostess for the reception at her home, was gowned in a white Italian printed silk, with a pleated white grosgrain headband and a corsage of gardenias.

A blue and white printed ensemble was the choice of the bride-groom's mother. She had a spray of blue delphinium pinned to her white hair.

The couple will honeymoon at the summer home of the groom's family in Littleton, N. H. They will make their home in Boston, Mass., and the groom will continue his studies at Harvard Medical school.

Carolyn Jane Woodhouse exchanged wedding vows with John Koutz Hooper Saturday evening at Christ Church-Cranbrook.

The Rev. Harold Towne and the Rev. Perry R. Williams performed the double-ring ceremony at 8 p.m.

Carolyn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Urban Ullall Woodhouse, 302 Lakeside, Birmingham. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Davis Hooper, 1619 E. Maple, Birmingham.

THE BRIDE wore her sister's gown, imported chastity lace over tulle, with a full skirt and draped neckline, by long sleeves, and she carried a cascade of white lily-of-the-valley roses.

A light cap of matching lace accented a fingertip veil of French tulle. The bride carried a bouquet of white orchids and stepmother presented on her white pony carriage.

ALISON BIRNS Woodhouse was her sister's maid of honor. Bride-tresses were Carol Lynn Bowen of Grosse Ile, Elizabeth Ann Cole of Detroit, Virginia Moore of Jasper, Ga., and Barbara Jane Jackson of Stone Mountain, Ga.

Attendants were gowned alike in ballerina gowns of mauve eye-taffeta with off-the-shoulder necklines, full bouffant skirts. All carried cascade bouquets of Burma-shield gladiolus, except the maid of honor who carried capture roses.

The groom's brother, William Hooper of Plainsville, Conn., was best man. Seating the guests were Robert Stone of Mason, Ga., John Edmond Bowen III of Grosse Ile, William H. Kramer, Stewart Peck, William Manning and John Brennan, all of Birmingham.

A GARDEN RECEPTION at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony.

Mrs. Woodhouse wore a rock-tail length dress of beige-organza over tulle embroidered in pearls. She wore matching accessories and a corsage of brown eximibium orchids.

The groom's mother wore a rock-tail length gown of slate blue taffeta with a full skirt and draped neckline, with rose velvet accents. She wore two pale orchids.

For traveling the bride chose a champagne shaded linen ensemble with a full skirt and draped neckline. After returning through Virginia, the couple will live in Alexandria, Va., where the honeymoon will study at the Virginia Theological seminary.

Classmate Designs Bridal Sheath Gown

An antique gold band given to her paternal great-grandmother by her great-grandfather on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary became Carlye Anne Scott's ring when she exchanged vows with John Cooper Adams.

Rites were read Saturday morning before members of the family in St. James Episcopal church with the Rev. Harold E. Towne officiating.

Another unusual feature of the wedding was the waltz-length, hand-drawn, designed by a classmate at the Rhode Island School of Design. A narrow band of linen outlined a deep yoke, extending over the shoulder to the hemline of the white lace sheath. Her gown was complemented by her maternal grandmother on her wedding day. Her fingertip veil of illusion was fastened to a plain band of matching white lines. She carried a spray of stephanotis, fleur-de-lis and ivy.

CARLYE is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Garrison, 2207 of Lane Lake road, Bloomfield Hills. John's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Earl Hays Adams of Montreal.

Mrs. Warren Hatch Maschoff was matron of honor in an avon shantung with white accessories. She carried white gladiolus and glitteminum with matching head-band.

Warren Hatch Maschoff of Providence, R. I., was best man. (See GOWN, Page 2, Sec. 2)

Westlady Folks Get Acquainted

When neighbors are too far apart for casual over-the-fence getting acquainted, more drastic measures have to be taken.

The families already located on Westlady, just south of 14 Mile, have been there long enough to get past the wedding acquaintance stage.

Knowing that distance sometimes made it a bit difficult for them, they began thinking in terms of the several families who will soon be occupying houses now under construction.

For thoughtful amusement and to prepare the way for future get-acquainted parties, nine families joined forces Saturday evening for a block party.

made some out of adult inspiration and guidance. One mother suggested they put on a play for the fun began.

THE YOUNGSTERS WORKED out their own acts, with parts for every child in the neighborhood except for those small citizens still stuck their traveling in kiddie chairs.

The show, presented Sunday at the Bernard Petzler home, was immediately incorporated into the planned block party.

Current plans are for these block parties to be held at regular intervals, possibly one very six weeks.
