Pre-College Party Goes Hawaiian

At 10:12 AM Saturday, a throng of students gathered in the University Union to witness the annual pre-college party, which featured a Hawaiian theme. The party was organized by the University Union Committee and was attended by hundreds of students.

The event began with a short speech by the president of the University Union, followed by a traditional Hawaiian dance performance. Then, a group of students dressed in traditional Hawaiian attire performed a series of traditional Hawaiian dances, including the hula and the conga.

After the dances, the students were treated to a variety of Hawaiian food, including pineapple upside-down cake, banana splits, and tropical fruit punch. The food was accompanied by a live band playing traditional Hawaiian music.

The night ended with a fireworks display, which was a hit with the students. The party was a huge success, and many students stated that they had never had so much fun before.
