BITS OF BIRMINGHAM

BIRMINGHAM HIGH SCHOOL'S new electrical football scoreboard drew many "oh's" and "ah's" from spectators when it went into action for the first time at Friday night's game between Birmingham and Southfield. The "board" was obtained through the efforts of the local American Legion post.

PLANETARIUM DEPLICATORY EXERCISES will take place at Cranbrook Institute of Science Sept. 30, at 6 p.m. Because of limited space only donors and members of half-a-dozen newspapers, including The Birmingham Eccentric, will be able to attend. This will mark the opening of the first planetarium in Michigan open to the public, and it is Cranbrook's first building that has been constructed with aid from outside individuals and companies.

NOW THAT IT'S LEVELLED OFF, would the gravel pit on E. Maple east of 1st Colidge make a good drag strip for area boys? Property is adequately supervised, such a facility might prove a welcome outlet for considerable youthful enthusiasm. But only City Commissioner Florence Willett seems to be favoring it... perhaps because it's her suggestion. However, other commissioners are thinking about the possibility of letting it be used for the high school driver training program. Until it's sold, that is.

"SO THE ECCENTRIC reports that I am 78 years old," smiled Dr. George P. Raynale, beloved local physician and surgeon, when he read the story in this newspaper last week, chronicling his selection as "Doctor of the Year" by the Oakland County Medical Association. "To be sure, I have practiced in this community for a half century but... and don't forget this... I am not 78 years old—indeed, quite a few years will have to pass before I reach that milestone," he told this Wanderer the other day. The Eccentric apologizes, Doctor... for anybody who knows you realizes that you are the living example of ceaseless youth!

PROTESTING RESIDENTS of Brentwood and Judson streets, just west of Evergreen, in Southfield township, last Thursday used their own autos to block traffic detoured while the Southeastern Oakland County Water Authority was laying a water main at Greenfield and 13th Mile road. Home owners objected to clouds of dust which heavy traffic stirred up as they made the jog back to the main arteries. Police finally were summoned to break up the unauthorized road block.

LAST SATURDAY EVENING was just a quiet movie night for Mrs. George Mountford, 16928 Lauderdale, and her son, Dennis, 12. Upon leaving they stopped in their tracks. "What in the world was the picture of my husband George, Dennis and myself doing in a theatre lobby?" Mrs. Mountford thought to herself. She and Denny moved closer to the lost and found display at the Bloomfield Theatre, and sure enough there they were in a 2-3 photo. After a few seconds young Denny realized that the picture was in a wallet he had lost over a year ago. There was no identification in the wallet and thus could not be returned. But there it was on the lost and found display board of the Bloomfield theatre marked Sept. 3, 1954. Denny never knew where he had found the wallet, and there was nothing important in it, but he was happy to get it back. Mrs. Mountford was relieved to know that the picture had no other bearing except to claim a lost item.

BLOOMING EASTER LILIES are relatively rare at this season, so Mrs. Henry C. McQueen, 621 Henley, was pleased and proud to have two blooms appear in her yard last week.
