

Tradition, Sentiment Is Theme of Wedding

Tradition and family sentiment were the theme of the day as Mirra Gould Butler became the bride of Robert Burton Spence, using a 57-year-old pie die quilt by the bride's paternal grandfather on his wedding morn. The bride wore her mother's wedding pearls, and to add to the traditional element, the wedding cake was topped with the same ornament that the parents of the groom used on their cake when they were married 26 years ago.

Rev. Harry J. Lord, director of Christian Education for the Michigan Council of Churches, officiating at the two-day ceremony in Plymouth Congregational church, Lansing, in Central Park. Minister of Music at Central Methodist church, gave a recital of organ music, providing and during the wedding rites.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of embroidered organza, fashioned with a portrait neckline, fitted bodice, and long sleeves. The train fell to a slight train, and she carried a cascade of white carnations and lily surrounding a white arched, small rain of matching organza held a fingertip illusion veil.

MARIE Barthol of Dearborn, maid of honor, carried two pink lily bouquets; and Mrs. Judith Butler, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Walter Allison, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Doro Zel of Marquette, Wis., cousin of the bride, all carried cascades of palest pink carnations. Their dresses of white dotted organza were crisply bonafant, waist length, and bodices fitted to the neckline were encircled with swaths of pink taffeta. Their headpieces were bandeaux of shattered carnations to match their sashes and bouquets.

Best man was Glenn W. Wilber of River Rouge. Guests were seated by Ed Janette, brother of Ed Janette, Va., brother of the bride, Walter Allison of Pontiac, brother-in-law of the groom; Ronald Engel of Flat Rock; and David Butler, brother of the bride, who acted as junior usher.

PARENTS of the bride pair

DIANA FORSHEW, 1530 Glogarry, will enter Western College for Women at Oxford, O., this fall. She is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Forshew.

William Leckie Claims Bride in Roscommon

William M. Leckie, Jr., claimed Roberta Elaine Yocum as his bride in an evening ceremony Aug. 26 in the Roscommon Congregational church. The Rev. D. D. Brady officiated at the double-ring rites before 100 wedding guests.

Roberta is the daughter of M. and Mrs. Ben A. Yocum of Higgins Lake. William is the son of Mrs. William Leckie of Leland, attorney and the late Mrs. Leckie.

After a Northern wedding trip the couple will reside at Olivet until the groom finishes school.

Robert J. Smith was best man. Ushers were Thomas J. Campbell and Thomas J. Stinson. Mrs. Yocum wore a blue jersey knit dress and Mrs. Leckie a blue tulle gown. Their flowers were red
