System of Weekly Cleaning to Skip Spring, Fall Task

By HELEN BRUNSON
Special Writer for The Birmingham Eccentric

Some of us have let our house-keeping go during the hot summer. That's been a pretty good excuse too.

Besides, we've gone to lakes and mountains to escape the heat, and haven't cared too much how things looked at home. But there comes a time when we take a look at mirrors, bases, boards and window sills, and decide that something had better be done.

Then comes the big fall house cleaning, when everything that has been neglected during the summer is brought up to date. Professional carpet and upholstery cleaners are brought in to do heavy work, walls are washed and all the wood furniture cleaned and polished.

DRAPERIES come down and go to the cleaners, and glass curtains are washed and rehung. The place looks good again.

First, every housemaker knows that a house that is kept clean, rather than let go, then washed, is a lot better than one that is washed and then let go.

What system of weekly cleaning for the living area of a house? Here, a housewife who has worked out a method which saves work and has a thorough job.

First, bring in a year's equipment for cleaning, preferably in a cart, the way hotel maids do.

You need a treated polishing cloth, a radiator sponge and a bottle filled with some radiator detergent, well mixed with water. And, of course, the vacuum cleaner.

Rx. for community growth . . . VITAMINS G-A-S

Good gas service and plenty of it—around the clock and around the year—can be what the doctor ordered to make your community grow.

It's a prescription your gas company seeks to live up to—for the availability of gas for industrial processing often is important in the location of new industry.

However, additional gas supply and the underground mains and other facilities needed to deliver it to you can't be provided overnight.

That's why your privately-owned, tax-paying gas company must risk investments in new manpower and expanded facilities today for your industrial, business and home needs of tomorrow. These investments make sure you'll always have vitamins G-A-S available for your community's growth.
