Gardens Suffer Seasonal Ills

By ALICE WESSELS BURLINGAME
Special Writer for The Birmingham Eccentric

It has been known that the gardeners who work under the ground are not always healthy, but the present season is a particularly bad one for the plants. Various types of diseases and pests are attacking the plants, causing a decline in their health.

One of the most common problems is the severe infestation of aphids. These tiny pests have a habit of sucking the sap from the plants, causing them to wilt and die. Other diseases, such as blight and rot, also contribute to the decline of the plants.

The gardeners are working hard to combat these problems, but the season is already well underway and the damage has been done. The gardener's challenge now is to prevent further damage and hope for a better growth in the future.

Welcome Saturday
We heard it said by: Mrs. Raymond Coffin
"Wishing you a wonderful and joyful day!"

Down to Earth

No Doubt In His Mind This Time!

The happy gentleman has just taken title to his seventh motor car. And while he would probably have difficulty recalling all the different makes and models he has purchased through the years, there is one thing he knows with absolute certainty. He was not satisfied until he took the key and made for the open road.

For this is his first Cadillac, and what a glorious feeling it is to know that at last he has chosen the "best of the best". Gone are the doubts . . . and the worries . . . and the wonder. This time he knows; he's right! And how quickly and convincingly the evidence will assemble in support of his sentiment!

First of all, there will be the sleek appearance that comes from the car itself—a magnificent performance in its appearance, comfort, and dependability. It is a remarkable car for its price, and its undeniable ease of steering and handling.

And then, as he takes the sway of the bodywork, there will be the quick flashes of approval from his fellow motorists. He will be happy in his judgment.

And, finally, there will be the delightful possibles of the road ahead that will be waiting for him at home. He will be able to partake of the wisdom of his choice.

Of course, the man who takes title to a new Cadillac today knows the value of such a purchase. It is a wise investment, and one that will provide years of satisfaction.