Cherie McArthur Wed In Grosse Pointe Rites

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Raymond Kraus, Jr. are honeymooning in Florida following their March 31 wedding at Grosse Pointe Congregational church. They will return Sunday to reside at 3314 Cummings, Royal Oak. Rev. Marcus Johnson performed the double-ring ceremony.

The former Cherie Beryl McArthur chose a princess styled bridal gown fashioned of white satin and chantilly lace. An appliqued net panel accented the satin skirt and lace scallops edged the chapel train. Her three tiered net finger tip length veil was secured by a pearl trimmed pillbox. A white orchid nestled in pompons made up her bouquet.

NANCY Wolfe of Detroit was gowned in pale mint green silk chiffon for her duties as maid of honor. A matching hat and a white carnation bouquet completed her costume. Yellow dresses and hats were worn by the bridesmaids, Barbara Vermeersch and Marian Troeno of Detroit and Nancy St. Peter, Grosse Pointe Park. They carried yellow carnations.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. George McArthur, 1166 Audubon road, Grosse Pointe Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Mark R. Kraus, 700 Williamsburg road, Bloomfield Village.

Lamps - Lamps - Lamps - Lamps

Consider the Lamp. It is light for our evening hours; but it is much, much more than that. After all, it is the lamps which largely set the whole mood for our rooms, and they do so either in a beauty-heightening way or, alas, with a jar to our senses or perchance a total lack of "belonging".

In today's home, lamps have a double duty. They must cast their adequate lighting and effect, but they must also be decorative things of beauty in themselves.

So often you have heard folks, when out of doors, comment on the beautiful blue of the afternoon sky; the majestic, breath-taking glory of a sunset, or its afterglow; even certain moonlight will call forth the spirit of the poet. What are all these phenomena? Just light; light that is beautiful of itself and beautiful in its setting.

Consider, then, the Lamp. Your lamps.

And when next you "freshen" your home with one or more new lamps we'd like you to first see the gracefully smart new bases and the beautifully-proportioned shades of parchment and silk in their new hues and designs which are now available at this Shop.
