Consumers Power Holds Regional Meeting Here

Stockholders of Consumers Power Co. in the South Oakland area will hear a report on the company's plans and prospects, including a discussion of atomic power developments, at a regional meeting of shareholders tonight in the Birmingham Community House.
The regional meeting in Birmingham is one of a series of ten such meetings in Michigan cities following the company's annual meeting April 10 in Maine, the state in which Consumers was originally chartered. Consumers operates only in Michigan, supplying electric or gas service to 1,019,000 individual customers, and more than half of the company's 72,000 shareholders are Michigan residents.

DAN E. KARN, president, will be the principal speaker at the Birmingham meeting. Several other officers and directors will be present. Karn will be introduced by Division Manager D. H. Goshard, and a brief report on the annual meeting will be given by L. J. Hamilton, treasurer of the company.

The program includes the showing of a motion picture "This is Automation." A scale model of the experimental atomic reactor to be built by Power Reactor Development Company on Lake Erie near Monroe, Michigan, will be exhibited.
Power Reactor Development Company was organized by Consumers and other electric and industrial companies to design, build, own and operate the experimental reactor.

"Own your own shoulders"

SAYS Lebow

The Lady Says "Yes... He wears Lebow Clothes."

In this understated Lebow Century model, the shoulders are all yours. The back-to-natural movement is beautifully illustrated by the Look-of-the-Century. Note the narrower shoulders, the slimmer lapels, the slender lines, the narrower trousers.

A word about the fabric: It's Courtley, imported exclusively by Lebow from England, softtailored by hand with consummate good taste.
Coat and trousers, $95.00.

Other Lebow Lightweight Suits, $95.00 to $145.00
