Severe Sandstorm Mars Car On Trip of Vacationing Couple

Starting out for San Diego with a brand-new convertible proved rather disastrous, according to Mr. and Mrs. Vince Provenzano of Bellville Trail. Everything was fine until they came to Albuquerque. A severe sand storm then hit the couple and delayed them but pitted the windshield and chrome body. In fact, they say they are still getting sand out of the engine. After this mishap though, things picked up and a fine vacation ensued...

After staying with Vince's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rosario Provenzano of San Diego, the Provenzos took a plane to San Francisco where they boarded a ship bound for Hawaii. On the island they stayed at the Surf Rider hotel nine days. Mrs. Provenzano says the most relaxing time of all was spent aboard ship. The Provenzos flew home and had the convertible shipped on, taking no chance of coming through another sand storm...
