

MAY I HAVE this dance? That was the question Birmingham's Russ Richardson asked of television actress and singer Peggy Taylor when she dropped in at the teenagers' "record hop" Saturday. After Peggy sang several songs for the teenagers, she accepted Russ's invitation. Heavy rains Saturday left large puddles on the Eton park skating rink slab, so the dance had to be moved inside.

THE CENTER of teenagers' attention at the "record hop" was Frank Sims, (left), WKMH disc jockey shown here giving away records to the dancers. Rainy weather Saturday kept many teenagers away from the dance, originally scheduled to be held outdoors on the Eton park skating rink slab. But the hundred or so who came to dance indoors were enthusiastic about the recreation department sponsored event.

Detroit Edison Installs Conduit Along East Maple

Installation of an underground conduit for electric cables is underway along the eastern end of Maple avenue, and work is expected to continue for approximately two more weeks, according to Detroit Edison steam and conduit division Superintendent Jack Bartholomew.

The conduit will run the cables underground from Edison's new Dudley substation on Conditole road 300 feet south of Maple. The two-foot-square concrete enclosure will run west on Maple as far as Columbia street, one block west of Eton, Bartholomew said. From there the cables will be suspended on posts.

Bartholomew said the cables were being run underground for some distance to avoid an unsightly cluster of poles near the substation.

He added that the new substation was necessitated by the increase in new homes in that area.
