State Senator Republican

L. HARVEY LODGE, 53, Drayton Plains, married, received his B. A. and LL.B. degrees from the University of Michigan, is attorney and counselor at law in Pontiac. Former service has included: research, Federal Courts, 1939-41; assistant attorney general, Michigan, 1936; chief assistant and prosecuting attorney, Oakland county, 1939-47; representative, state legislature, Pontiac, 1947-48; director of Michigan Children's Aid society, twice its president, 1940-50; served on the Pontiac housing commission, and on the Board of the Clinton Valley Boy Scouts of America. Lodge says: "Oakland county needs an experienced and dynamic representative in the State Senate who will cooperate with all city, township, county officials and public spirited civic groups to meet the problems of adequate roads, water supply, sewer disposal, drains, schools, city and township government, matters of taxation and constitutional revision. My police devotion to the accomplishment of these objectives."

CLARENCE A. REID, JR., 29, of 21641 Fairway drive, Southfield township, married, two children, has taken an active interest in PTA in his community. A navy veteran of World War II, he matriculated at Tri-State college and received his LL.B. degree from the Detroit college of law, Detroit, Mich., 1948. He is affiliated with Pontiac Elks Lodge 810, Judges, Amvets, Air Force Assn., Quiet Birdmen, Economic club, Birmingham - Bloomfield Republican club and Kirk in the Hills Presbyterian church. Brown recommends immediate steps to remedy problems like highways, schools, teachers' pay, facilities for mentally retarded children and adequate water and drainage. He says: "Underlying my interest in all of these is my basic concept of our great economy as one that has built itself through freedom, paid its own way and should have our undying efforts to preserve it as such."

ROBERT W. HODGE, 53, of Lake Angelus, married, two children, a practicing lawyer in Pontiac for 25 years, law degree, Detroit college of law, BSE degree, University of Michigan. Former political experience includes office of Lake Angelus village since 1940; former chairman of Oakland county Republican committee, 1948-49; former director, Royal Oak Chamber of Commerce; former director, Family Service Assn., Royal Oak; former director, Oakland Citizens League, Inc., and Pontiac township justice of the peace, 1954 to present. Hodge advocates creation of a water authority for southeastern Michigan and immediate start of engineering there for a Lake Huron water supply; toll thruways; clearly defined home-rule powers for townships directed to slum prevention; sewer construction; garbage and rubbish disposal, and special high schools for exceptionally gifted children.

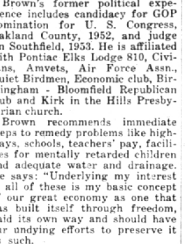

RICHARD D. KUHN, 36, of Pontiac, married, graduate of Michigan State university with a degree in political science, and Detroit college of law, is the owner of an auto wash. Kuhn in the U. S. Congress for three years, Kuhn is a member of the Methodist church, Pontiac; harbor of commerce, Waterford junior chamber of commerce, and local Oakland planning council. Kuhn says he is opposed to toll roads, believes in free enterprise, and is in favor of a constitutional amendment to limit the taxing power of the federal government in regard to income taxes. He says that government that governs must govern best.

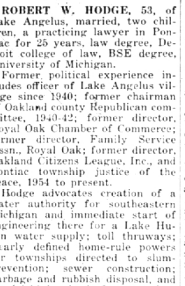

STANLEY M. BROWN, 36, of 1309 South Shore, Pontiac, married, four children, distributor and publisher of F. records, attended college before entering the Army Air Corps where he was a much decorated combat pilot and flight commander. He has since served in the Air national guard and air force reserve. Brown's former political experience includes candidacy for GOP nomination for U. S. Congress, Oakland County, 1952, and judge in Southfield, 1953. He is affiliated with Pontiac Elks Lodge 810, Judges, Amvets, Air Force Assn., Quiet Birdmen, Economic club, Birmingham - Bloomfield Republican club and Kirk in the Hills Presbyterian church. Democrat

PHILIP E. ROWSTON, 35, of 24 Utica, Pontiac, received a B. A. degree in philosophy, politics, and economics from Olivet college and graduated from Detroit college of law. A lawyer, Rowston is a member of West Pontiac Kiwanis club; Amvets; Elks; Pontiac chamber of commerce; director of Pontiac real estate board, and Deacon of First Congregational Church. Rowston says: "If elected I shall endeavor to sponsor legislation which will alleviate the serious shortage of adequate facilities for mentally ill. I pledge my support to promote and initiate appropriate legislation to meet the serious problem of water shortage and inadequate drainage facilities."

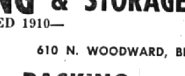

FRED ELIAS, 42, of Hazel Park, married, three children, along with his brothers has been in business over 17 years as owners of the Big Boy Drive-ins. Elias is an Exchange and Rotarian. He is past president of the Hazel Park businessmen's assn. and of the Michigan Drive-In restaurant assn. He is serving his second term on the Oakland county board of supervisors and was the Oakland county, 1954 Democrat nominee for state senator. Elias says: "My goal is to pass laws, or repeal unfair laws shackling our people and strive toward a friendly, helpful atmosphere in Lansing. I believe everyone in this state is entitled to happiness and prosperity so they may live in peace and security. I firmly believe a representative of the people should dedicate his life to preserving this atmosphere of security. And I think it can be done."

DANIEL J. CONNOLLY, JR., of Royal Oak, no information or picture available.

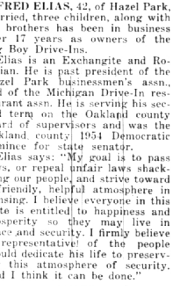

WILLIAM R. JUDY, 36, of 1642 Beverley Blvd., Berkeley, married, two children, former supervisor for Vickers, Inc., and World War II air force pilot, is presently an insurance and real estate agent. Now Berkeley's mayor, Judy has served as Berkeley councilman, on the planning commission, and was selected to represent the Mayors' group from 16 south Oakland county communities at legislative hearings at the 1956 sessions on drains and water. Judy says he feels that his six years of progressive leadership in municipal government have given him an exceptional insight into the governmental problems of expanding Oakland county. He plans to use this experience and acquaintance with local officials in approaching problems of drainage, water, highways at the State level.

HARVEY BEGGS, 63, of Bloomfield township, is the retired president and owner of a metal finishing business. Beggs was a practicing funeral director for 14 years, received special training from National Cash Register, and was resident manager of WXYZ. He has been justice of the peace, coroner, jury commissioner, and member of the Election commission. "In a series of articles in the Birmingham Eccentric," says Beggs, "former state representative Richard VanDusen told of a need for businessmen in the state legislature. That is the need I hope to fill, and will do so by working 12 months a year to promote the welfare of the residents of the six townships I represent." He says: "I will vote according to my convictions and the majority of the people whose advice I will seek; with special attention to roads, sewerage disposal, water where needed, schools, institutions, distribution of tax money and administration expenses."

JAMES C. FOSTER, JR., 27, of Birmingham, graduate of the University of Michigan and law clerk in Detroit, expects to receive his LL.B. degree from Wayne university in 1957. Member of BPOE and Young Republican club, Foster was a special agent, Army Counterintelligence corps from 1951 to 54. Foster says: "Problems which I believe must be solved in the near future are: a water pipeline from Lake Huron, some plan of future development of rapid transit for Detroit and suburban communities, effective safety program for highways, and local financing in the sense of a more equitable system of assessment valuation."
