MRS. CHARLES F. SPADEMAN

Bridal Gown is White Over Blush Pink Satin

Gowned in white embroidered organza over blush pink, Sherrell V. Adams walked down the aisle of the Church of the Redeemer, Lorain, Ohio, Friday, to become the bride of Charles F. Spademan, son of Dr. and Mrs. Loren C. Spademan of Warren Court, Birmingham.

Following the late afternoon rites, the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lon B. Adams, hosted a reception at Spring Valley country club, Elvira, Ohio.

SHERRELL'S floor length dress was designed with organza ruffles trimming the bodice. Her white veiling was secured by a blush pink satin cap and she carried a cascade arrangement of white roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. John P. Stevenson of Concord, Mass., was her sister's only attendant. Blue daisies were used for her bridesmaids and were combined with pink rose buds for her bouquet. Her white organza cocktail length dress featured a blue sash and white organza over blue skirt.

Charles asked his brother, Loren

MRS. DONALD R. JONES

Repeat Wedding Vows In Grand Rapids Rites

In a candlelight ceremony late Saturday afternoon, Barbara Louise DeLong exchanged wedding vows and rings with Donald Raymond Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Edward Jones of Purdy street, Birmingham.

Rev. Richard W. Albert solemnized the rites in Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church, Grand Rapids, after which the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James MacGregor DeLong, Jr., were hosts at a reception on the church's patio.

BARBARA'S bridal gown was

Take Wedded Trip To Canadian Rockies

The new Mr. and Mrs. Richard Roy Deskin left the scene of their reception, the Detroit Boat club, by cruiser to start a three-week wedding trip to Banff, Lake Louise and Jasper in the Canadian Rockies.

Before her marriage at 2:30 p.m., Saturday, the bride was Joanne Martin Sproule, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth W. Sproule, 1568 Yorkshire, Birmingham. Richard's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Roy Deskin, 32120 Rosevear drive, Southfield township.

The Rev. Harold Towne was assisted by Dean R. Charles Brown of London, Ont., for the double ring rites at St. James Episcopal church before 200 wedding guests.

JOANNE'S white peau de soie gown was fashioned with an empire bodice appliqued with hand run almonon lace and tiny pearls, tiny sleeves and princess lines. Appliques of the matching lace accented the floor length skirt which fell into a chapel train. The same lace was used on the cap of shirred illusion which held in place the two-tiered fingertip veil. She carried lily of the valley and fleur deamour centered with three phalaenopsis orchids.

PROCKS of mint green taffeta with back interest, consisting of butterfly bows at the low pointing bodices and flared skirts were worn by the six attendants. They had headbands of ivy leaves.

Jane B. Foster of Flourtown, Pa., was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Kay Deskin of Birmingham, and Miles of Western Springs, and daughter, Brenda, all of Sar-ll, Sharon Horne of Dearborn.

FOR HER daughter's wedding and reception, Mrs. Sproule wore dusty rose alienor lace over taffeta with inserts of satin, matching shoes and small hat, and champagne colored gloves. Mrs. Deskin wore ice blue over taffeta with matching accessories. Both mothers had cymbidium orchids pinned to their purses.

To start her wedding trip Joanne donned a gold linen dressmaker suit with beaded detail at the neckline of dress and jacket. When they return they will make their home in Lansing.

Out of town wedding guests included Mrs. Fred W. Sproule, grandmother of the bride from Sarnia and Mr. and Mrs. Lorne W. Sproule and daughter, Brenda, all of Sar-ll, Sharon Horne of Dearborn.

MRS. RICHARD R. DESKIN

Sallie Louise Buck Weds Hugh R. Morrow

Sallie Louise Buck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Buck of Townsend street, Birmingham, exchanged wedding vows Saturday evening with Hugh Roger Morrow, son of the Raymond A. Morrrows of Merrill street, Birmingham.

St. James Episcopal church was the scene of the double-ring, candlelight ceremony performed by Rev. Harold E. Towne in the presence of 150 guests.

THE BRIDE was gowned in ballerina length white embroidered crystalite styled on princess lines and covered by a matching long sleeved jacket.

The bride's hair was styled in a pearl trimmed half circle of leaves secured her fingertip veil and white ribbon and stephanotis were combined in her bouquet. Completing her costume was a strand of pearls, the size of the groom.

Yellow and white daisies formed the center of the circle bridesmaids and were arranged with ivy in the baskets they carried.

MATRON of honor, Mrs. Arnold Weiss of Ann Arbor, wore blue crystalite with matching jacket, and aqua crystalite was worn by the bridesmaid, Mrs. Arthur Williams of Centerline, and the junior bridesmaid, Debbie Beldon, cousin of the bride, from Old Bradford, Frederick, Md.

Robert Morrow was his brother's best man. Ushers were William Kelley of Royal Oak, Arthur Williams of Centerline and Donald Degan of Birmingham.

Mrs. Buck pinned a deep pink spray orchid corsage to her mauve rose silk organza and lace dress with which she wore a matching hat.

BEIGE satin and lace fashioned the gown of the groom's mother. Her hat was beige and her flowers white roses and carnations.

Guests were greeted at a reception in the church undercroft. The new Mrs. Morrow changed to a beige, rose and green printed polished cotton with a beige coat for traveling with her husband to Isle

Bands of grograin formed the headdress securing her veil of ivory French illusion and she carried a cascade arrangement of ivory roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Preceding her down the aisle were the matron of honor, Mrs. John Allen Gibbs of Birmingham, and the bridesmaids, Mrs. John R. DeLong of Grand Rapids, Mrs. Horace C. King of Birmingham and Mrs. Daniel A. Nesbitt of Royal Oak.

CRESCENT shaped bouquets of pink spider full mums and ivy were carried by all the attendants. Their frocks were of ivory satin peat, ballerina length, styled on princess lines with short jackets and bow trim. Completing their costumes were matching hats with circular veils.

George E. Sharples came from Fort Wayne, Ind., to be best man. Ushers were John A. Gibbs and Melvin E. Allshouse of Birmingham and John R. DeLong of Grand Rapids.

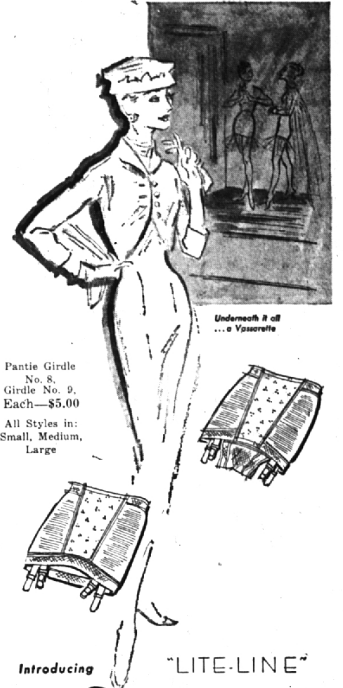

A corsage of pink rosebuds adorned the blue lace over taffeta gown of the bridegroom's mother. Her velvet hat was in a matching shade. Mrs. DeLong pinned green cymbidium orchids to her beige embroidered silk organza dress with which she wore a beige velvet hat with crystal bead trim.

AFTER a northern Michigan honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Jones will make their home in Royal Oak. The bride's mother, Mrs. Towne was a gold printed silk sheath with matching linen shantung coat.

Guests at the business at the reception included two sisters of the groom, Elaine Jones and Mrs. Melvin E. Allshouse, of Birmingham.
