

MRS. CARLETON P. McLain, Jr.

Katherine Mary Daeschner Married Saturday Evening

A reception in the Berwyn road home of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Daeschner followed the Saturday evening wedding of their daughter, Katherine Mary, to Carleton P. McLain, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carleton P. McLain of Detroit. Three hundred guests witnessed the marriage performed by Rev. Robert L. DeWitt in Christ Church, Cranbrook.

SEED pearls and chantilly lace accented the scooped neckline of the bride's Italian silk taffeta wedding gown and there were lace insets in the full skirt ending in a court train.

Her double-tiered illusion veil fell from a cap of chantilly lace and seed pearls. Amazon lilies, lilacs of the valley and pink roses were combined in her bouquet.

Matron of honor was Mrs. C. Dow Caldwell of Anderson, Ind., and bridesmaids were Mrs. Rex A. Sebastian of Columbus, Ind.; Mrs. Charles Vauchan of Lafayette, Ind.; Mrs. Robert O. Daeschner of Pittsburgh, Pa.; and Mrs. William H. Daeschner of Ann Arbor.

THEIR sleeveless sheath dresses were created of white cotton lace over ice blue taffeta with scooped necklines and ice blue sashes forming a bustle puff and back panel flowing to below the hemlines. Ice-blue velvet hoods held face veils and they carried pink roses and ivy.

Seating guests were Peter E. Hoglund of Cleveland, Ohio; Arthur W. Palmer and Robert Louis Stevenson of Bloomfield Hills; and the bride's brothers, Richard E. of Cleveland, Robert O. John C. of Van Nuys, Calif., and William H. Best man was Robert M. Wilson of Glenview, Ill.

MRS. Daeschner's light blue Italian silk sheath was complemented by matching hat and shoes and pink cymbidium orchids were pinned to her purse. The mother of the groom selected a Dior blue chiffon dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white roses.

Katherine changed to a grey and white cotton and silk tuxedo suit with white hat and patent accessories for a trip with her husband to Martha's Vineyard, Mass.

They will reside in Bloomfield Hills.
