Section 3

Thursday, August 30, 1956

Every generation of human beings contains in good and sincere men and women, and also its quantity of fabric, hypocrisy, and the many in between; but if the pattern of poetic justice, of Right's Law, is sown in the soil of his life one is bound to reap good of harvest time.

Jane F. Corregan Wed At Kirk-in-the-Hills

Kirk-in-the-Hills church, Bloomfield Hills, was the scene of the double-ring ceremony Saturday afternoon at which Jane F. Corregan and William Garrison Husted exchanged wedding vows.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Corregan of Graefield road, Birmingham, was gowned in white imported silk organdy. Fashioned with an embroidered organdy square necked, short sleeved bodice, the gown featured bands of embroidered organdy circling the tiered bouffant skirt.

A VEIL of white illusion cascaded from her headpiece of seed pearl trimmed organdy flowers. She carried a cascade arrangement of white glamelias and stephanotis and organdy garterlets completed the bridal picture.

Mrs. Bradley Corregan of Santa Anna, Calif., was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Ellen Martz of Wing Lake and Mrs. Bernard Penner of Green Lake.

Their cascade bouquets and halos were composed of pink and white roses, complementing their pink rosebuds.

MRS. WILLIAM G. HUSTED

Jane Cook is Bride Of William McConnell

Kirk-in-the-Hills church was the scene of the Saturday afternoon marriage of Jane Charlotte Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Clifford Cook of Franklin Hills drive, Franklin, to 2nd Lt. William Thompson McConnell, son of the William Gerald McConnells of Zanesville, Ohio.

After the rites, the wedding guests were greeted at a reception in the garden of the Cooks' home.

JANE chose for her wedding day a gown of imported Italian silk with a square neckline, short sleeves and extremely full gathered skirt.

Her Venetian lace mantilla was acquired in Rome when she visited there recently while touring Europe. Completing her ensemble was a floral arrangement of glamelias and ivy.

Preceding the bride down the aisle were the bridesmaids, Nancy Nicola of Shaker Heights, Ohio, and Sue Sadosky and Mrs. Mae D. Heslop of Columbus, Ohio, and the maid of honor, Ronnie Douda of Willoughby, Ohio.

They carried baskets of yellow glamelias and wore lace garden hats to match their blue cotton dresses. Italian lace bordered the square necklines of the gowns, formed a V in back and also bordered the full back panels.

ROBERT Hopkins came from Washington, D. C., to be best man. Ushers were J. Tyler Cook of Franklin, James B. Stoffer, Jr., of Newark, Ohio, and Mac D. Heslop.

Mothers of the principals pinned corsages of white cymbidium orchids to their gowns. Mrs. Cook selected a grey-blue satin finished cotton with matching accessories and the mother of the groom wore wedgewood blue lace.

After a wedding trip along the Gulf of Mexico and to New Orleans, Mr. and Mrs. McConnell will make their home in Enid, Okla., where he is serving as a lieutenant in the United States Air Force.

For traveling, Jane changed to a blue tweed cashmere cotton sheath dress and jacket, navy accessories and white glamelia corsage.

ASSISTANT hostesses at the reception were Ann Dunn of Shaker Heights, Ohio, Nancy Fox and
