

12-Year Olds Close Play School

Two enterprising Birmingham girls drew their six-week play school to a close last week with a program for the parents and party for the children.

Nancy Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Rodman Turner, 1721 Winthrop lane, and Jacque Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Cook, 1798 Winthrop, would pick up their young charges every morning at 10, returning them to their homes at 12. For this the two twelve-year-olds charged five cents a day.

Monday was drawing day at the play school and Tuesday was devoted to games. Nature day was Wednesday and Thursday was "surprise day."

One "surprise day" the young ladies took their seven charges on a hike, another time they went over to the school to play on the playground.

THE WEEK ended with "showing day" on Friday. Each child would bring something to show.

Jacque didn't serve any food except at parties, because it was too close to lunch.

The closing day program consisted of the nursery school song and pledges, and dances and games. Lemonade and cupcakes were served.

Party Celebrates Joint Birth Date

Henry Stephens' 92nd birthday celebration came a month early this year. Mr. Stephens and his great granddaughter, Susan Van Dyke, who was born five years ago on his birthday, Aug. 4, usually celebrate together.

This year, a family dinner party was arranged on the Fourth of July when Susan was here on vacation with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Van Dyke, of Northfield, Minn. Dr. Van Dyke is professor of Zoology at Carlton college, Carlton, Minn.

The notagenarian was born and raised in Southfield township where his parents had 180 acres of land near 10 mile road, Evergreen and what is now Northwestern highway.

Until the death of his wife a year ago, Mr. Stephens resided at 525 Ham and now makes his home with his daughter, Mrs. George Jackson, in a house at 526 Watkins built by his parents when they moved to Birmingham in 1916.

He has two sons, Edward of Howell and Philip of Highland, and three other grand children, Beekie, Ruthie and Stephanie.
