To Honor College Students

College students, most of them home from out-of-town universities, are being honored by many churches during the Christmas season.

At Youth Community service last Sunday at First Presbyterian church, both high school seniors and college students were honored with the Cecilia choir singing and the high school seniors singing. A reception followed the afternoon service.

First Methodist church's student Recognition day is being observed at both services next Sunday. College students will usher and assist in the service, and James Johnson, Duke university student who is the son of the James B. Johnsons, of 808 Chesterfield, will speak.

THE PRE-THEOLOGICAL student's topic will be, "Why I Am Entering the Ministry." It will follow a sermon by the Rev. Dr. Arnold F. Hunkel on "The Challenge to Full-Time Christian Service." Coffee hour follows the 11 a.m. second service.

Christ church (Cranbrook's) college students attending the college breakfast in the church house dining room last Saturday. It was presided by a Corporate Communion.

Lathrup Church Is Party Co-Sponsor

A New Year's Eve party for young people is being sponsored by Community (Congregational) church, Lathrup, and the Southfield Boys club.

The 9 to 1 a.m. event will feature the music of Bernard Leschley, Community church organist, who will be assisted by other musicians in providing dance rhythms. When the teenagers leave the dance at Wolverine Hardware, 12 Mile and Southfield roads, they will proceed to the church for a 1 a.m. New Year's breakfast.
