Springdale Gets Fences

Golfers who have been using a side entrance to avoid paying greens fees at Springdale Park will be out of luck this season. Birmingham city commissioners have approved funds for fencing the south and west lines of the course. In the past non-residents could enter the course from this area. For the past two years Springdale Park has been available for Birmingham residents only. The fences also will protect the course from vandalism. In July and October of last year, there were incidents of greens being torn up and flag sticks destroyed.

YMCA Cage Loop Resumes Action

Embury Methodist best Congressional, 23-17, Monday night in the YMCA Church league. In other games First Baptist defeated St. James Episcopal, 41-38. Lutheran, 28-26, in the third game Monday night at the Birmingham YMCA. Next Monday night Embury Methodist meets St. James Episcopal. Congregational faces First Methodist and First Baptist takes on First Presbyterian.

Local Fencing Club Started

Birmingham fencing club got started Tuesday night at the Birmingham high school with the beginning of the adult recreation program. Beginners classes will be open to the public every Tuesday night at the high school with the co-operation of the city department of Parks and recreation. Spearheading the organization of the club are Jim Campoli, former captain and now coach of the Lawrence Tech fencing team and Dick Perry, fencing coach at the University of Detroit.

CAMPOLI is presently the Michigan champion in all three fencing divisions, foil, epee and sabre. Perry is former fencing star of Columbia University and ex-coach of Highland Park high school. Last year Perry's U of D team posted a 15-2 record and captured the classes. They will be tutored by Joan Snyder, renowned figure in state fencing circles. Club members and those attending classes will be expected to purchase their own fencing equipment.
