

Part of the art of practicing wisdom is to be careful before whom you "test your powers" of advice or warning. You may seek to help another over some problem—but be sure that he reveals a willingness to accept; otherwise you may get his resentment.

Margaret and Ek Touring With Returning AFS Students

They're homeward bound, after nearly a year in the United States as American Field Service exchange students. It means sad farewells to American friends, coupled with joyful anticipation of seeing parents once more, for the teen-age high school students returning to their native lands around the world.

Among the nation's hundreds of sturmees are Birmingham's Margaret Davis and Ekhard Dorf. It was the AFS which made all tour arrangements, though the world trip itself was Margaret's idea. At Oakland Hills country club recently, six AFS students whose American homes were in the East were the guests of Dr. John P. Wood of Lyonhurst, at a splash party. The swimmers were from a group of 25 young people who visited the Detroit area for four days.

They stayed with Birmingham and Royal Oak families. All of the annual AFS-sponsored touring groups wind up July 17 in Washington, D. C. There President Eisenhower will speak to the hundreds of returning students, who will carry back with them a real understanding of the American way of life. In return, most of them have made friends for their own nations wherever they went. From Washington, the students will go to New York or the West coast to sail for home.

"SEN", who made his Birmingham home with Dr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Deer, of Midland, will return to Salzburg, Austria. For Margaret, home in New Zealand is still a long way off, for he won't be there until December. That's because the thrilling prospect of a world tour is ahead for Margaret, whose Birmingham home is with the Lawton C. Talors, of Devonshire. Mrs. Tabor is Birmingham's American Field Service representative.

THE GROUP SPONSORED by the Royal Oak Women's club was entertained by the community's organizations at dinners, dances, and luncheons. They enjoyed one of the muses for anyone visiting Detroit for the first time, a tour of an automobile plant.

Mrs. William F. Krueger, of Huntington Woods, made all the arrangements for their visit. Mrs. Delmar Gowling, of 1106 Wakefield, Birmingham, was hostess to two of the young students, Claude Cournotte, of Belgium, and Erik J. Oelby, of Norway.

Mrs. Glenn L. Sawyer, of 16023

Elizabeth, had Elaine Senechal, of France, as her house guest. The Saturday event at Oakland Hills was one of three splash parties for the group was too numerous to visit any one private pool. Dr. Paul Leonard was host to approximately ten swimmers at Plum Hollow country club, while Dr. James Matthews invited another ten to Red Run.

Co-host with Dr. Wood at Oakland Hills was Dr. H. P. Stinson, of Royal Oak.

THEIR GUESTS WERE Elaine Senechal, Caroline Henniger, of The Netherlands; Bobo Stephan, handsome German lad who plans to study law; Suzanne Simon, of France; Elizabeth Schoepf, of Switzerland, and Diethild (thee) Schelle, of Germany.

Other guests were Martha Elliott, Alice Sawyer, Sue Christensen, Julie Mehlanacher, Tom Sawyer, and Dr. Wood's daughter, Jeanne.

NANCY J. JONES

Wins Scholarship To Will-O-Way

Twenty-year-old Nancy J. Jones wanted to apply for the Will-O-Way apprentice theatre scholarship but needed a woman's club to sponsor her. Mrs. Celia Merrill Turner, director of the theatre, made this known to the Birmingham Women's club, and the members, recognizing Nancy's talents, decided to be her sponsor.

Nancy justified their decision by winning the scholarship, entitling her to attend without charge a seven-week session at the theatre, which is affiliated with the playhouse on Long Lake road.

The eldest of six children, she attended Detroit public schools and is completing her high school work in night school. She is employed by Michigan Bell Telephone Co.
