"I'm Having A Ball"

"If I said I'd rather be home, I'd surely be lying . . . I'm having a ball!" writes Pat Fuller to her parents, the Douglas Fullers of Westchester Way.

At the last minute there was an opening on the Chet Sampson tour and the Fullers tore like mad getting Pat ready.

On their way out to the west coast the gals cooked breakfast one morning on a main street in Iowa in front of a bank and took time to go sliding down a mountain without sleds . . . Pat says, "It was so cold they could hardly stand it."

The tour will arrive home July 22 and Pat will have two weeks to catch her breath before the family, which includes brother Dick, takes off for its annual jaunt to Nip-i-gan on the Straits.

Department's aim to make available an organized recreation program.

"The fields and vacant lots in the city are fast disappearing," he remarked, "That's why we want to provide parks where the kids can play ball, and find plenty of space for their games and other activity."

WHETHER YOU encourage more exercise for your children by calisthenics in the home, by urging their participation in organized city-recreation programs, or by discouraging the TV watching and car riding, better get started on it, if you think your youngster needs it.

As children grow older, Ewing says, it's more difficult to achieve physical fitness.
