MRS. DARILL W. PERRY
Joy Ann Sauerbrun
Weds Darill Perry

In a candlelight ceremony Saturday evening in Kirk-in-the-Hills church, Bloomfield Hills, Joy Ann Sauerbrun exchanged wedding vows and rings with Darill W. Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey W. Perry of Pontiac. The bride's parents are the Richard A. Sauerbruns of Pembroke avenue, Birmingham.

White crystallette fashioned the bridal gown. It was designed with a shirred inset forming the sleeves and bateau neckline. The tiered bouffant skirt fell from a dropped waistline.

A CROWN of pearls secured the bride's illusion veil and white iris, miniature white shasta daisies and ivy were combined in her bouquet. The attendants' frocks were street length, aqua in color and styled with dropped waistlines, full skirts and round necklines. They carried cascade arrangements of yellow Shasta daisies and ivy. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Victor G. White of Lansing, Nancy Webb of Detroit and Jean Schade of Grosse Pointe. Mrs. Arlon D. Perry of Birmingham was the matron of honor.

ARLON D. Perry was his brother's best man. Seating his guests were Richard A. Sauerbrun, Jr., Victor G. White, Bruce L. Satteria of Pontiac and Jack Bell and Russell Nordman of Birmingham.

For the wedding and reception which followed in Birmingham Community House, the groom's mother was gowned in street length grey lace over pink tulle. Mrs. Sauerbrun received in a deep aqua shantung sheath dress with which she wore shell pink accessories.

When the couple left for a honeymoon trip to Michigan's upper peninsula, the bride was wearing a blue cord sheath trimmed in white lace and white accessories. Upon their return, the couple will reside in East Lansing.

'Seven Year Itch' To Tell of Malady Afflicting Males
As a male approaches the "dangerous years," one of the commonest maladies to strike him is "The Seven Year Itch," or so says George Axelrod in his comedy of that name, which opens Tuesday at Will-O-Way playhouse.
The story records the harried vacillations of a New Yorker whose family is at the seashore. Feeling the creeping surge of middle age and the possibility that certain romantic aspects of life are passing him by, he engages in an attempt to grab the brass ring on the carousel of life.
In this instance, the brass ring is represented by a captivating blonde in the upstairs apartment. "The Seven Year Itch" follows on the (w)heels of "The Solid Gold Cadillac" which concludes its successful run Sunday, July 1.
