

Builder Sues City to Force Use of Homes

TROY—Clare Construction Co. has been granted a writ of mandamus asking the city to show cause why that company should not be issued building permits and certificates of occupancy for homes intended for, or completed, in the Leonard Lane subdivision of Adam between 16 and 17 Mile roads.

They also want to force the city to return $500 per home put in escrow to cover cost of providing a means of removing sewage from the area.

Clare Construction is erecting homes for M. W. Huber and Son, who have declared they do not want to join two other builders in putting up money to complete the northeast arm of the Evergreen interceptor, said Norman R. Barnard, city manager.

Planners Informed Of Diesel System

South Oakland Planning Council heard about a new answer to the highway congestion problem last week at the council's meeting in Huntington Woods.

Lynn D. Searcy, a transportation expert, told the group that a diesel car commuter system between South Oakland county and Detroit would relieve highway traffic and solve commuter problems.

Searcy said that 10 trips by the diesel car system, rather than the present five by the Grand Trunk railroad, was a possibility.

MEMBERS of the council agreed that the proposed system would be beneficial in the expansion of the South Oakland area.

"The system would be a boon not only to this area but the downtown Detroit shopping district," said Herb Heitzberg, council chairman and Birmingham city planner. The Grand Trunk railroad has taken no stand on the system, according to Searcy.
