League of Women Voters Schedules Unit Elections

At a planning meeting Monday, members of the Birmingham League of Women Voters were told to become intelligent about the community they live in and to pass on to fellow citizens facts they collect while learning more about their city and its environs.

The league has undertaken a "know your town" study, including the relationship of Birmingham to the surrounding areas. At the gathering in the home of Mrs. Dean G. Beier, Dorchester road, Birmingham, ways and means of attacking the study were discussed.

Different situations that exist in the area in regard to city officials' salaries, number of employees, roads, schools, sewage disposal and other subjects were related to the group. A children's services committee will attempt, at unit meetings, to show the "whys and wherefores" of some of these situations.

Alley by the River To Get City Study

At the property owners' request, the city has started drawing tentative plans for an alley behind businesses on N. Woodward between Ravine and Park streets.

City engineers expect considerable difficulty in coming up with a design because of the Rouge River which flows so close to the rear property lines.
