LWV Speakers Rivalled By Beautiful Scenery

Members and guests who attended the May day tea of West Bloomfield League of Women Voters, at the Norman Mealey home, Bloomfield Glens drive, last week, were torn between the view of landscaped and flowered terraces, natural valley and flowing stream seen through the huge picture windows and the honor guests.

Mrs. Chester Cable, state league president, talked about the close connection between state officers and local groups. Mrs. L. Horner, field secretary from the national office, Washington, D.C., pointed out new ways of performing voters' services, since surveys and questionnaires pioneered by the league have been taken up by groups better equipped with manpower and finances. Her sparkling personality and enthusiasm were contagious. Mrs. Graham Overgard assisted at the tea table.

LWV members Mrs. Clare Helgenberg, Mrs. Campbell Harvey and Mrs. Theodore Diehm journeyed to Flint to take part in that city's portion of a three-day program conference divided between Grand Rapids, Flint and Detroit. At these meetings, individual members discussed projects as a guide to new workers. Still others from West Bloomfield league attended the downtown Detroit conference.

Sounds of merriment coming from the Raymond place home of the Donald Wallers May 19, came from the fourth grade girls of Walnut Lake school, invited to help Suzanne Waller celebrate her tenth birthday. Three tables of guests ate luncheon, moved indoors to avoid stiff breezes. Suzanne's happiest surprise was a letter from her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Waller of Miami, Florida, telling her that they plan a July visit here.

At their first annual meeting, at Bloomfield township hall, members of the Lone Pine Heights subdivision discussed transfer of control of property from Thompson-Brown association to the property owners. The organization will be known as the Lone Pine Heights Improvement association. Three new board members were elected: L. Dale Chrysler, Richard Brown and Wendell Rieggle. Mr. Rieggle will also serve as treasurer. Other members of the board are Richard Goodwin, president; David Robertson, vice-president; and Mrs. Donald Waller, secretary.

On May 23, Walnut Lake school safety patrol boys and service girls were escorted to the ball game by Mrs. Anne Triff, Mrs. Esther Gol-
