

Says the Barrister

You sometimes forget that many Michigan laws are different from those in other states.

We're all proud that Michigan continues to be one of the nation's fastest-growing states. Each year thousands more owners here to benefit from the many opportunities in business and industry. In addition to their skill and brain-power, these newcomers bring with them a variety of legal papers and ideas which are based upon the laws of other states.

We don't always remember that federal laws are only a part of our system and that each of the 48 states has reserved powers under the constitution to make its own laws. "States rights" is one of the most jealously-guarded principles in American government.

BECAUSE of this difference in state laws, for example, a state like Nevada becomes a popular spot to get a divorce, many business incorporate in Delaware, and some other states become havens for quiet marriages. But there are many lesser-known variations in state laws which can have quite a bearing on your legal affairs.

If you own property in another state, or prepared your will before moving to Michigan, or have business interests elsewhere, no matter how small, the variations in state laws could make a difference to you and your family.

If I were now in Michigan I know I would take a second look at my legal standing in the light of Michigan law. If I should move to another state, I would do the same thing when I got settled there.

OR IF I HAD a plot of land in Florida or California as part of my retirement plans, let's say, or even minor interests in another state I'd protect myself beforehand against any possible complications due to differences in state laws.

The best-laid plans in your home state might put you or your heirs at a disadvantage when interpreted under the laws of another state.

Economy-Sized Contract Signed

Artist to Discuss Story of Pharmacy Which He Painted

CRANBROOK—Some years ago the Parke-Davis company commissioned Robert A. Thom to paint a series of pictures representing important milestones in the development of pharmacy.

The story of this series, which depicts pharmacy from the earliest use of roots and herbs to present day wonder drugs, will be described in a lecture "The Story of Pharmacy's Heritage" by Thom and George A. Bender tomorrow at 8:15 p.m. at Cranbrook Institute of Science.

The lecture is open to the public without charge.

200 Violators Halted by New Police Radar

Birmingham's new radar-equipped police car is doing a good job of detecting the motorists who speed down your street, according to figures released this week by Police Chief Ralph W. Moxley.

During its first full month of operation in October, the new equipment helped police detect 200 motorists who were exceeding the speed limit. The figure is nearly twice as high as the September total of 118.

Dr. Deer Views Latest Advances In Navy Dentistry

Dr. Edwin W. Deer spent some time recently in the nation's capitol representing Naval Reserve dental company 9-20. He was one of sixteen Naval Reserve dental officers called to the Navy Department from all parts of the United States to learn about the latest advances in Navy dentistry.

As a lieutenant commander, he saw the latest developments in dental research studies conducted by the Navy and public health service. A graduate of the University of Michigan, Dr. Deer lives at 1082 Midland, Birmingham.
