The Girls' Athletic association field hockey tournament ended Monday. The winning team was captained by Deanna Laughlin. Each player will receive a pin signifying the victory, to add to her GAA letter.

Pledging is just about to come to an end for junior and senior girls joining Alpha Phi Sigma Tau. A bake sale after school last Thursday was only one of the many tasks the pledges had to perform. Final formal initiation is planned for Wednesday night. At this time the new girls will become full fledged members.

In observation of Veteran's Day last Sunday, a program was given over the intercommunication system at Bloomfield Friday morning. Mr. Kenneth Ollis, the librarian, was the master of ceremonies. Mr. William Drummond, junior high teacher, and Mr. Dean LaRue, French instructor, told experiences they had in the service during World War II.

At the last BHHS senior high student council meeting, discussions centered upon reports from pupils who attended conferences at Brighton and Ann Arbor. Members also decided to have representatives of the council patrol the lunchroom so that, with their vocal aid, students might throw trash in the place provided rather than on the floor.

Kingswood Column

Saturday evening Kingswood girls and their fathers will be guests of both the Student Council and the senior class, for an experience exciting both gastronomically and psychologically.

They will first attend a Student Council-sponsored "Dads' Dinner" and then adjourn to the auditorium, where seniors will present a college mystery play called "Nine Girls."

The nine girls will be played by Judy Knudsen, Alex Nason, Marcia Melet, Anne Wilson, Shirley Block, Gail Armstrong, Kate Meyers, Mary Shaw, Mary Frensdergast, and Martha Vicinus. Committee heads are Mary Foster, Marilyn Merrins, Sally Sanford, Pat Graham and Anne Wilton. The play is directed by Miss Barbara Hamel, assisted by student directors Sean Beverage and Ann Graf.

Cranbrook Corridor

By KEN CAMERON

Last Tuesday Rabbi Saepstein of Temple Beth Jacob in Pontiac spoke in chapel. Rabbi Saepstein is one of the many local clergymen who make annual visits to Cranbrook to discuss world situations and religion.

Bruce McCull and Duncan Black have been busy signing up boys to attend the eighth annual junior round table of metropolitan Detroit. Purpose of the organization is to promote mutual respect and friendship among high school students of all religions, races, and backgrounds.

Meetings will be held Saturday from 9:15 a.m. until 3 p.m. at the Backham Educational Memorial in Detroit.

Bruce and Duncan have arranged for about 30 boys to make the trip. Kingswood will also be represented at the meetings. Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Hoy are holding open house for all Kingswood and Cranbrook juniors Sunday. Punch and cookies will be served from 3 until 6 o'clock.

Next Monday and Tuesday nights will be parent's night at Cranbrook. Parents will have a chance to discuss academic problems concerning their sons with teachers. There will be a coffee hour from 9:30 until 10:30 each night.

2,000 Turn Out

Approximately 2,000 area high school students and their parents turned out last Thursday for an AAUW-sponsored college night at Southfield high school, according to Marjorie Van Amsede, principal. Representatives of 75 colleges and universities were on hand for discussions with interested students.
