Home Service Advisor Speaks To Newcomers

The importance of being a business manager in order to be a good homemaker was stressed by Miss Belle Hanagan in her talk to Birmingham Newcomers at the November meeting Thursday at the Community House.

Speaking on the topic "Home Management Pays Dividends During the Holiday Season," Miss Hanagan called today's housewife, Mrs. Executive Homemaker. She said that a master plan is needed to run a house, and suggested delegating work to children and other members of a household.

Specifically, the speaker mentioned holiday preparations, commenting on the details of preparing large meals and buffet suppers, about home lighting for Christmas and suggested aiming a spotlight toward the front door to call attention to host and hostess as they greet guests.

Miss Hanagan is a Home Service Advisor for Detroit Edison and is connected with the Birmingham branch.

A film entitled "Meet Mrs. Swenson" completed the program. It stressed adequate "housepower" in correct lighting and modern appliances as an aid to the homemaker.

Mrs. Walter Riley, Jr., president, conducted a short business session and announced that the December meeting would feature the exchange of inexpensive gifts.
