

Although the weapons of war have been improved to such a point that one H bomb can blast out the largest city, the weapons of international diplomacy are just as weak as ever. These weapons, you see, are woven from the fabric of the self-interest and doublecross of the moment.

At Village Woman's Lecture-Luncheon

Membership Grows to 850, Auxiliary Being Formed

Turning out for the first luncheon meeting of the newly organized Village Woman's club was 260 of its present membership of 850 . . . and there is still a waiting list.

Speaker for the lecture luncheon last Wednesday at Oakland Hills Country club was Norman Nadel, drama critic. Mrs. J. J. Nance, president of the group presided.

club are now registering for three courses, which will include art, drama and investments.

Members of the fast growing others will be held in the Baldwin public library. Arranged by Mrs. Edward Rothman, it will feature history of art, taught by William McGonigle of the Detroit Institute of Arts, who has spent the last two months in research in Europe.

The art course starts Oct. 8, 9:45 to 11 a.m.; the drama course on Oct. 11 and the investments course Oct. 22 at 8 p.m.

ACCORDING to Mrs. Morgan D. Douglas, Jr., the club has no definite building plans. The board had been busy all summer on the "investigation of real estate," remarked Mrs. Douglas, "but there's a lot to be considered with such large membership . . . it must be desirable and centrally located for all concerned."

Besides the 850 plus a waiting list, under the guidance of Mrs. Robert H. Taylor, an auxiliary is being formed which has about 60 members.

THE GROUP has doubled its membership since its organization and has twelve active board members besides the president, Mrs. J. J. Nance. They are Mrs. Frederick C. Booth, Mrs. W. Sydney Gilbreath, Jr., Mrs. Brooks Marshall, Mrs. Warren S. Booth, Mrs. Stevie R. Sellers, Mrs. Allan Joslyn, Mrs. Bruce Knight, Mrs. Louis Colombo, Mrs. James R. Bragaw, Mrs. Morgan Douglas, Jr., Mrs. Ferd Brook and Mrs. Robert H. Taylor.

OUTSIDE in the warm breeze are Mrs. W. Sydney Gilbreath, Jr. (left) and Mrs. Martin Butzel as they chatted with guests attending the lecture-luncheon.
