B'ham Post Office Receives 7 Righthand Drive Trucks

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield recently announced that 5,743 new trucks, 1,500 new motor scooters, 2,000 bicycles and 6,000 new golf caddy carts were soon to be distributed to post offices to speed mail deliveries.

Birmingham post office has received seven of an allotted 11 righthand drive trucks for delivery of mail to urban areas.

These vehicles have push-button transmission, booster brakes and are especially designed for mail delivery. Mail can be dispensed quickly by carriers who will not have to leave the wheel of the truck to put the mail in the boxes.

AMPLE space is provided for loading and delivery of parcel post, magazines and other bulky mail.

These features are well designed to fit the needs of this office as our mounted routes carry heavy loads of all types of mail," said Birmingham Postmaster Robert W. Reese.

Other cities to receive these vehicles were Pontiac, Royal Oak, Farmington and Milford in Oakland county. The Birmingham post office expects three additional trucks of the parcel delivery type to alleviate pressure of parcel delivery at the local office.

Meter readers in Atlanta, Ga., have to scoot to keep up with their job. The 100,000 meter task is increasing by some 3000 meters per year, and that's why the readers are being issued three-wheeled motorized scooters to cover their routes.
