Canvass Interest In New Bank Here

A summary of the extent to which Birmingham businessmen and residents are interested in another local bank is expected to be ready for discussion next Tuesday night, according to Cass Wilson, spokesman for the group considering such a move.

At a meeting Tuesday night, Wilson distributed questionnaires to more than 20 persons who have indicated interest in the new venture.

Bike Check Set At Quarton School

The bicycle inspection crew of Birmingham police and local Kiwanians will visit Quarton school Saturday at 9 a.m.

Juvenile officer Lt. Henry Timm said bicycle owners from other schools could attend the Quarton inspection to receive Scoutlike tickets. Licenses will also be issued, and prizes will be awarded in an obstacle course contest.

Troy Mother, Alone in Home, Delivers Own Baby

TROY — Mrs. Luther Hayes, Jr., 1754 Muer, Troy, found getting a birth certificate much more difficult than delivering her infant. The baby, now eight days old, arrived unexpectedly and too soon for the mother to call for help.

Mrs. Hayes, a German born nurse, had seen enough deliveries to know what to do. Her other child, Heidi Marie, 2, was taking a nap. The birth came to light when Mrs. Hayes applied for a birth certificate. Troy city clerk, J. Lawson Lockhart, filled in the form, signing in Mrs. Hayes as both mother and attending physician.

Since the recent merger of the two former local banks into the Detroit Bank & Trust Co., Sept. 1, available banking hours conclude at 6 p.m. Friday evenings.
