

North Adams Blm. Hills School Officials Attend Eastover Dedication

Dedication of the new Eastover elementary school on Westview road, Bloomfield Hills, took place Sunday afternoon in the school's multi-purpose room.

Opening the dedication ceremony, boy scouts presented the colors, and Rod Ackerman, Parent Teachers Organization president, introduced Merrill O. Bates, board of education president. Other board members at the dedication were Douglas Jocelyn, Robert Hoffman, David Lee and Karl Scott.

Invocation was given by the Reverend Herman Huhmann of the new Beautiful Savior Lutheran church in Kentonoor. Mrs. Elizabeth Dowling of East Long Lake road, a long-time resident of the area, cut the ribbon. Following the ceremony parents visited school rooms at an open house.

EASTOVER school teachers are Mrs. Julia Vandenberg, kindergarten teacher, a graduate of Wayne University and 21 years a teacher and principal.

Mrs. Mary Kettle, first grade teacher is a graduate of Wayne State university and University of Chicago.

Mrs. Grace Hinkley, second grade teacher, a graduate of Berea college and Wayne State university, taught in the Pontiac public schools for 15 years and 8 years in Kentucky.

Mrs. Gloria Burke, third grade teacher, is a graduate of Rosemont college and Temple university. She taught two years in Philadelphia, Pa. Joan Dunn, fourth grade teacher, is a Michigan State university and University of Colorado graduate. She has taught in Midland and Grand Rapids, and in Illinois, Germany.

CLINTON COOK, a fifth grade teacher and a graduate of Battle Creek college and University of Michigan, is editor of the color pictorial magazine "New World News." Laure and his wife are described as "two people who have done more to create unity between France and Germany than anyone else." Others included Mrs. Norman Keene of Canada, Richard M. Hadden, pianist and composer of Hollywood, Calif., Dickie Dodds of Great Britain, professional cricketer, Michael Hutchinson of Great Britain, and Miss Klar Widmer of Switzerland.

to get the snake as they do not have one.

Last year, the Brendels came across a two-foot milk snake in the garden, but it got away before experts from the Detroit Zoo or Cranbrook could see it.

The Harold Beavers of North Adams road have returned from a Chicago convention of the screen process printing association of which Mr. Beaver is vice president-elect. A couple of extra days were added so they could see a bit of Chicago.

Alex Wason, son of the Robert Wasons of Lanerger drive, celebrated his fifth birthday Oct. 13. Enjoying the party fun, ice cream and cake with Alex were Todd Taylor, Fritz Fralick, Tom Reichard, Tim Robinson, Johnny Yates, Jimmy Wason.

Mrs. Robert Briske of Henhawk road entertained at a coffee last week honoring Mrs. Lillian McGregor, Pembroke school third grade teacher. Assisting Mrs. Briske with dessert were home-room mothers Mrs. David Dougherty and Mrs. Rex Filkins.

Newcomers to Pine Hill are the Richard Figgins of Walnut Hill drive, formerly of Rye, N. Y. Mr. Figgins is an industrial design director of Sundberg Fear Inc., Royal Oak. The Figgins children are Mari Anne, 9, Tommy, 7, attending Pembroke, and Jennifer Rae, 6, among the family's many interests are, golf, art and archaeology.

Other new residents are the Lawrence Hoffstetters of Pine Hill drive, Hickory Heights, formerly Cleveland Heights, Ohio. Their children, Marcia, 17, and Larry, 14, are students at Birmingham high. Mr. Hoffstetter is a sales engineer with Foote-Burr Co., Detroit. Hobbies of Larry and his dad are hunting and fishing while Mrs. Hoffstetter enjoys bowling.

From now on, the August Brendels of Beach road are going to step lightly when they are in their garden. Last Wednesday, they came across an 8 inch milk snake. After talking to the Detroit Zoo's head curator of the reptile department, Mrs. Brendel put the snake into a mason jar and took it to the Zoo. They were very glad
