Reports Battle Between $2,000 Gun—1400 Lb. Bear

Show any woman a gun with a $2,000 price tag, and her reaction might be the same. Two thousand dollars for that and there's not a bit of mink on it.

Mrs. John Morse of Wilton scoffed when her brother Dick Voss Maur showed her the costly weapon on a recent visit to his Columbus, Ohio, home.

They, (the mate), explained, with infinite patience about the workmanship, the precision and smoothness of the gun. Then, Amy Morse got a look at Dick's latest hunting trophy, a 10½ foot, 400 pound Kodiak bear.

He walked under the bear, peered awesomely at the monstrous paws, saw the cruel eyes, the vicious snarl that bared the mouth.

There, in that brief encounter, came an understanding, for at least one member of the distasteful pair of expensive guns versus fang and claw.

Columbus audiences are getting a look at Dick's hunting expedition via their TV screens nightly. (Robert Voss Maur of Bloomfield Village is Dick's brother.) Mrs. Morse drove over to Columbus after flying to New York. State for a visit with a sister, Mrs. Howard Campbell.

The contemporary home on Overlook with the pecky express interior is the new home of the Russell Walkers. Originally Detroiters, who lived for a time in Plymouth, the Walkers have been housed in the few months just a short distance from their new home and have had the fun of watching the house go up. Walker is in insurance.

The Frederick Booths and the Walter Klapert of Snowshoe city vacationed together up Canada way for a bit of fishing. The fishing was excellent; weather, be-ri-er. The Lone Pine Village Protective association discussed the pros and cons of a fence along Telegraph road at their Sept. 14th meeting held in Bloomfield township hall.
