Boring planning a swimming trip!

Every day is one day less for the seniors, and the last count was 26 more school days. It's not that we want to leave Southfield just the books, exams, etc. In just four more weeks, seniors leave on their trip to Mackinac.

We were amused at Gary Evans' pretty red plaid belt when he played the part of the butler, Gary replied, "I didn't think anyone could see it!"

The excitement of the play didn't end at the finish of the Saturday night performance. Afterwards, some 80 young people went over to the home of Jerry Gort, and enjoyed the traditional cast party, or cast bash. They played ping pong, had several comedy acts, including Larry Teran modeling a knight's armour suit.

Gary Evans borrowed one of the feminine costumes, a black dress, and donned it. There were several entries in a Charleston contest, and we still don't know the winner. The "cocktail" of the evening was Up-town and olives!

It seems good to think that there will be no school for five whole days. Everyone is looking forward to traveling, sleeping, working, and I actually heard Chuck Staples and Mel

Southfield High Notes

By MARGARET GRAY

The last Inter-Highs talent assembly was held at Southfield, featuring talent from Farmington, Berkley and Southfield. The show was emceed by Ed Ward, who did take-off on the "Skinny, Skinny World." All talents, however, were satisfactory, featuring a magician, singers, a dancer, a tap dancer, piano player and an accordion player.
