

Appoints New Vice-President

Duane C. Salisbury 3120 Chikering Court, Bloomfield Hills, will join the Simmons-Bourman publishing corporation, New York, on April 15 as a vice president of the corporation and as director of sales for its railway division, according to an announcement made this week.

Mr. Salisbury has been vice president and general sales manager of the Detroit colotype company and sales counsel of the W. A. Klot associated companies, manufacturers of printing and printing plates for advertising agencies and publishers, since 1955.

Prior to that, he served as president general manager and member of the board of directors of the Carter Company of Detroit, manufacturers of printing plates for the advertising trade. Mr. Salisbury was a director of the graphic arts association of Michigan from 1950 to 1954, and president of the association from 1952 to 1954. Mr. Salisbury, an alumnus of the University of Michigan, started in the graphic arts industry with the Service Engraving Company, Detroit in 1927, and during his 14 years' stay with this company became vice president of sales and a member of its board of directors.
