President of Consumers Power Outlines Gas Supply Situation

To clarify any misunderstanding which might have been created by previous publicity on the gas supply situation, Arthur H. Lee, district manager of the South Oakland district of Consumers Power company, informs us that Dan E. Karn, president of the company, has issued the following statement with regard to the problem:

"Consumers Power company is serving all the gas space heating customers it can with the supply of gas now available.

"The contemplated lifting of Michigan Public Service Commission restrictions on gas space heating service did not change this situation.

"Before we can connect additional space heating customers we must obtain additional supplies of gas. This we are earnestly trying to do and we definitely mean to succeed. But as things now stand, no prediction can be made as to when it will be possible to connect additional space heating customers.

"At present we are serving more than four times as many space heating customers as we were a few years ago. This has been accomplished through the connecting of additional groups of customers from year to year as gas supply conditions permitted. We do not intend to relax our efforts until everyone who wants to heat his home with gas is able to do so."
