Plant Trees Near Home Structure

As we enter this modern cycle of weed eradication, fast fertilizers and new techniques, we find that the balance of Nature is disturbed. The widespread use of weed killers to destroy dandelions, golden rod and other weeds is starving the native bees, thus the complication of the problem of adequate pollination. I am missing my usual volume of birds.

Trees really create a cool orbit around your home setting when it is hot. One and a half tons of water are given off by an oak every twenty-four hours when the temperature is 80 degrees and the humidity 50.

WORKING backward on the picture the tree roots take up from the soil water reservoir about 400 gallons of water per day. If the fine hair roots cannot locate this water to transfer to the large roots, which can be seen, the leaves will begin to wilt which is not an uncommon sight in August and September.

In order to counteract a deficiency on your property remove the nozzle and slowly let the hose run at the base of a water starved tree for hours. Four hundred gallons of water transpired by the tree each day will lower the temperature under a tree.

Mrs. Burlingame

This is a very good reason for planting trees near the home structure with a wise planting taking into account the east and west location and the location of the sun.

SO MANY HOMES in this area have fine plantings, good care, and they really tell the world: "We love our home".

A superb job of planning was done at the Anibals, 1435 Cranbrook Road. Here we have a corner location with a long designed ranchhome. There is a perfect ratio of evergreens with deciduous shrubs.

I like the grass which comes up to some parts of the structure wall so you don't get the idea that the home is set in spinach. The planning is on its eighth year and really shows off the fine architectural lines of the home.

There is a tall hedge screening the rear garden, remember they reside on a corner and ordinarily such a location is a goldfish bowl. Three andora junipers are massed at the base of a lamp post, well done.

ON THEIR tree lawn they have the most beautiful speciman of European Linden or tilia cordata. It has little leaves and extends close to the ground. Now here is the shade tree for your new selection if you can afford to have it as a speciman with at least an eighteen foot diameter. This tree at Anibals is thirty feet high.

A Koster blue spruce is tall, with vivid blue needles and calls for full sun, and at least a undisturbed diameter of twelve feet.

A multiple branched white hybrid lilac takes the spotlight on the lawn and is very handsome.

If you have a large circular drive and want hints on the treatment of it you will like to pass by the Judge Beardens at 2169 Tottenham. There you also see the right ratio of evergreens and deciduous plants, so spaced that they will allow for graceful maturity.

You will find many bargains in The Eccentric Classified Columns.

Poland, in a new Soviet-Polish trade agreement, will get iron, manganese, chromium ores, cotton, oil, oil products, ferrous and nonferrous metals from Russia in return for coal, zinc, coal ships, fishing trawlers, railroad engines and other goods.

WHY?

Do We Have 'RED TAPE?'

Term comes from pinkish or red ribbon with which official documents are bound. In addition, many consular papers, like ship clearances, must be perforated, red ribbon inserted and bow-tied, then whole sealed with wax and imprinted with Great Seal of the government.

Shipmaster, who missed sailing tide while consular official fussed with pretty red bow, told Washington Irving he had been "tied up in red tape."
