Mrs. Loren Blunt
Attends Christian
Writers' Meet

The writing of fiction, feature articles, news stories, missionary stories, and other material was discussed at the Christian writers and editors conference attended last week by Mrs. Loren O. Blunt, 412 W. Lincoln road, Birmingham. Among speakers at the conference at the Green Lake Wis. American Baptist Assembly were novelist Elizabeth Yates, Clarence W. Hall, senior editor of Reader's Digest and Kenneth L. Wilson, managing editor of "Christian Herald."

Young Delegate
Attends School
Of Alcohol Studies

Attending the fifth annual Youth School of alcohol studies and Christian action in Adrian last week was Jackie Koski, 1505 Sherfield road, Birmingham.

Jackie is president of the Methodist youth Fellowship, Methodist Methodist church in Detroit. The school on the Adrian college campus is sponsored by the temperance and education boards of the Methodist church. Purpose of the lectures and discussions is "to provide Christian youth with positive solutions to the problem of drinking in America today."

Lutherans Break Ground

Rev. Ronald F. Fuller turns the first shovelful of earth on which the house-chapel of St. Andrews Evangelical Lutheran church will stand within a few months. Ready to take the second turn with the shovel is the Rev. John A. Root, new minister of the church now meeting in Bloomfield Village school. Bruce Butler (left) is contractor for the church's first unit on Telegraph road near Maple. Beside him is John H. Zich, vice president of the church council. After the recent groundbreaking ceremonies, Mr. Fuller left to begin organizational work with another Michigan congregation. Mr. Root was installed as minister at services Sunday. Rev. Dr. Frank Madsen, president of the Michigan synod of United Lutheran church of America, officiated. The congregation's building will be used as a chapel until a church structure is completed later on the site. Chapel then becomes a parsonage.
