

Their Work Gets Around

Three young artists at work here are winners of certificates citing their pictures entered in an international art exhibition. From left, fourth grader Cynthia Cahn, third grader Sharon Mork, and second grader John Calver, of Quarton school, were selected as certificate winners of the word "waxing." Their pictures, with a number of others from Quarton school, went all over the world with the children's international exhibit, first assembled in Munich, Germany. Second through sixth graders at Quarton prepared pictures for the exhibit under the direction of Mrs. Theresa Bassett, the school's art teacher last year.

Last week Miss Grubb, our girls' gym instructor, held tryouts for girls who wished to join Water Ballet. The girls were required to do the kip, the back dolphin, the bullet dive, the crawl, and the over hand side stroke. The girls who have joined the club are Elaine Hudson, Joy Beardsley, Nan Chinn, Kinky Squibb, Martha Kenison, Joan Osborn, Judy Mork, Joan McNab and Barbara Vass. Welcome Mermaids!

Last night the eighth and ninth grade music department presented Barnum's annual Christmas concert. Participating were orchestra, glee club, and combined choir. The theme was an old-fashioned Christmas. Our principal, Mr. Hengst, sang a solo.

This year each homeroom has a project to help various needy families and organizations. The homerooms collect clothes and gifts, which they wrap and present a few days before Christmas. The presidents' club, with Miss Bruste's help, is issuing the individual families to the homerooms.

We understand that the Sophomore end-of-year sale came close to $3100 net. This was triple the amount they expected to sell. Bonnie Bennett, ace saleswoman, sold over $600 all by herself.

The high school faculty enjoyed their Christmas party Monday evening at Huck's Redford Inn. You could tell there was something in the air, everyone looked so happy and there were so many of those cheerful little Christmas corsages.

The annual Christmas concert was presented last evening in the Southfield high gym through the combined efforts of the band and choir. The carols by the choir were under the direction of Vincent Kochenderfer and the music by the band led by James Barrows afforded everyone an evening of joyful listening.

Winter Sports Program for Boys Begins at Derby

By LES CARTER

Boys interested in sports at Derby junior high school have a choice of basketball or swimming to choose from this winter season. Both activities got off to a good start this past week. Mrs. James Gilster, Derby's swimming coach, will again be in charge of the swimming program, which will include both swimming and diving.

While some boys are swimming after school, others will be found across the hall trying out for the basketball teams, which Mr. Bub Keller coaches. After the intramural season is over, a Derby-Barnum game will probably be played. Last year, if you remember—and

Tuesday evening saw the beginning of Cranbrook's annual Christmas Pageant. Starting at 5:30 and ending at 7:30, the students and many guests enjoyed a delicious turkey dinner which was followed by parading and singing of the Glee club. This was the last formal dinner before the mass of jocund students left Wednesday morning to all parts of the country to have a merry Christmas.
One of Cranbrook's masters, Mr. Bruce Coulter, is now working on his second novel, "John Colter, First of the Mountain Men." This book, similar to his "Wagons Across the Mountains" published last year by Dodd, Mead, and Company is the fictionalized biography of John Colter. From the time of the Lewis and Clark expedition, on which he was a hunter, to his death in 1812.
